

MERCURY TOBOGGANS TOWARD 26 DEGREES; TWO KILLED IN STATE HOLIDAY ACCIDENTS

Atlanta Stages Greatest Sales Carnival Today

BUYERS TO PACK CITY AS STORES OFFER BARGAINS

Shopping Thousands Will Take Advantage of Amazing Values Displayed by Merchants.

COUNTERS CLEARED FOR YULE SEASON

Half Fares in Taxis and on Trolleys and Buses Will Cut Costs of Trips.

The Southeast's Greatest Sales Carnival will get under way this morning with thousands of Atlanta and Georgia shoppers joining the parade to downtown stores.

Prosperity will literally hum as the throng of shoppers from every part of the state crowd into the stores to take advantage of the most amazing lineup of bargains ever offered by Atlanta merchants.

Round-trip fares for shoppers on street cars, trackless trolleys and buses will be only 10 cents between the hours of 9 and 4 o'clock.

Taxicab fares likewise have been cut in half for Atlantans who want to take advantage of the sensational array of bargains.
Nothing has been overlooked in an effort to make it a pleasant as well as profitable day for the shoppers. Thousands of bargains will be piled high on shelves and shoppers will find values in anything they need.

Unusual Bargains.
Never before has such a great day been planned by Atlanta merchants, who pointed out that the low prices are possible only because they have slashed prices to make way for the Christmas shopping season.

Many of the unusual bargains were announced in yesterday's 60-page issue of The Constitution, more appear in today's edition and many more in Atlanta's stores await those who attend this big sales carnival. Only through such a general sales day would merchants be able to offer such values.

Courtesy cards will be distributed in stores by The Constitution's "Mystery Hostesses," permitting lucky shoppers to obtain free meals and rooms in leading Atlanta hotels.

Guest tickets to leading downtown theaters where special pictures are being offered this week will also be given shoppers by the hostesses.

Low bus fares will enable out-of-town shoppers to attend the sales carnival and participate in the bargains.

Special Round Trip.
The special round-trip fare on street cars, trackless trolleys and buses will be good on all lines where the regular seven-and-a-half-cent rate is applicable.

The shopper can board the street car, bus or trackless trolley after 9 o'clock and ask for a special return ticket which will be

Chamberlain And Windsor Meet in Paris

Halifax Accompanies Premier; Christmas Return to England Probable.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—(P)—British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and the Duke of Windsor conferred here tonight on what is informed British sources said were plans for the former King Edward VIII to return to England with his American-born wife.

The meeting was the first between Windsor and a chief of the British government since he, as king, had a last talk with Stanley Baldwin, then prime minister and now Earl Baldwin of Bewdley, shortly before abdicating December 10, 1936.

Almost without notice the prime minister, here for talks on defense plans with French statesmen, hurried into the Duke's hotel for a 20-minute conversation. His only companion was the tall British foreign minister, Viscount Halifax.

Afterward Chamberlain came downstairs with a smile. Lord Halifax kept his usual stolid mien.

Sources close to Windsor said they were uncertain about what plans had been made, if any.

They indicated, however, that the prime minister's visit was another step in negotiations opened by the Duke of Gloucester, Winsor's second younger brother, on November 11.

PALESTINE HAVEN DENIED TO JEWS

Holy Land Provides No Hope for Terrorized People, Commons Told.

LONDON.—Reaffirming Prime Minister Chamberlain's declaration that Palestine "offers no hope" to Germany's 700,000 terrorized Jews, Colonial and Dominions Secretary Malcolm Mac-Donald rejected appeals that Palestine be opened immediately to 100,000 Jews.

Opening commons debate on the Holy Land issue, MacDonald said: "We never anticipated this fierce persecution in Europe.
We made no promise that Palestine should be the home for everyone seeking to escape such a calamity."

"If I were an Arab, I myself would be alarmed," he added, citing swift expansion of Jewish settlers in Palestine.

BERLIN.—Fearing that many Jews, such as those in concentration camps, will be unable to meet their part of the Nazi $400-000,000 fine, Jewish leaders agreed that the levy would make emigration almost impossible in the next nine months.

Meanwhile, Colombia's minister-designate to Berlin, Rafael Garamillo, left for home in protest as a result of riots during which Nazi police tried to seize cameras within his car.

MACDONALD REJECTS ZIONIST APPEALS

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(UP)—Colonial and Dominions Secretary Malcolm MacDonald late today rejected appeals by World Zionist leaders that Palestine be thrown open to provide immediate refuge for 100,000 German Jews in the Holy Land.

(President Roosevelt late last night expressed the hope a report he had received that refugee immigration to Palestine would be "materially increased" would prove authentic.

"It is reported here that the number of refugees to be permitted entry into Palestine will be materially increased," the Presi-

ENGLAND, FRANCE TO POOL AIRPLANES INTO WAR FLEET

Goal of 10,000 Planes Set in Effort to Match
Fascist Force; Unified Defense Is Organized.

ANTI-WAR PACT SIGNATURE NEAR

French and Germans to Duplicate Anglo-Nazi Declaration of Munich.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—(UP)—The premiers of Great Britain and France tonight concluded two days of "completely satisfactory" consultations with a decision to pool their air forces and build a fleet of 10,000 fighting planes in an effort to outstrip the superiority of Europe's dictatorships.

The unified preparations for war were decided upon against the contrasting backdrop of a decision by France to sign a "no-morwar" pledge next week with her traditional enemy across the Rhine, Germany.

The Franco-German pledge, on the pattern of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's anti-war declaration with Great Britain signed at Munich on September 30, drew loud praise from British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax at the conclusion of their Paris consultations.

Chamberlain and Premier Edouard Daladier agreed that despite their determination to follow up the four-power Munich accord with a general structure of European security, it was urgently necessary to maintain the unwritten Anglo-French military alliance without relaxation.

Most important, they were said to have agreed upon a determined effort to overtake the superiority in the air of the German and Italian air forces, which might play an important role in the unwarrantable invasion of Poland in August of last year.

The French agreed, for their part, to speed up aviation production by early in 1939 to 280 planes a month, most of which will be light and heavy bombers.

British Goal.
The British, putting full-speed ahead to their new rearmament program, will concentrate on fighting planes.

By 1940, it was estimated, the combined air forces could have a strength of 10,000 planes. France's share of 5,000 planes to be in readiness by April of 1940, would include 2,617 bombers.

The unified defense preparations would be extended to large-scale military co-operation on land, under a French proposal calling for British conscription.

At the request of the French, Chamberlain and Halifax will carry back to London Friday a suggestion that Britain have in instant readiness a territorial expeditionary force of 250,000 men, ready to be rushed to France in event of war.

4 Prisoners Escape After Slugging Guard

LONDON, Ohio, Nov. 24.—(P)— Four prisoners at the London prison farm today slugged a guard at the main entrance, knifed a trustee, looted the armory of at least four pistols and escaped in a stolen automobile.

They later stole another automobile from Russell Descombs near Springfield, and headed north in the two machines. Descombs said all four had pistols.

$95,000 FIRE IN TAMPA.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 24.—(UP)— Fire which broke out in a wholesale warehouse early today raged for four hours and caused a loss estimated at $95,000.

Football Is Football---- Weather to the Contrary Notwithstanding

Like the postmen who disregard the "wind, sleet and snow," this Atlanta couple, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hipps, braved raging elements yesterday for the sake of charity to see the Georgia-Tech fresh football game, proceeds of which go to the kiddies in the Scottish Rite hospital. Note the paper Mrs. Hipps has wrapped around her pedal extremities.

This is beauty and the beastly weather. Pretty Misses Nelle Whitmore, of Atlanta, and Annabelle Salmon, an Alabamian, shivered and shook yesterday in the snow and sleet out at Grant field, but they stood by like good soldiers while the Tech and Georgia freshmen football teams fought it out to raise money for the crippled

PRESIDENT HOST AT GALA DINNER

Warm Springs Patients Draw Lots for Places at Roosevelt's Table.

Text of Roosevelt's Talk on Page 8.
WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 24.
(P)—President and Mrs. Roosevelt were hosts tonight at a gala Thanksgiving turkey dinner given for the crippled children and adults and their families living at this isolated colony of infantile paralysis sufferers.

President Roosevelt read a telegram addressed to him at the Thanksgiving dinner which took an implied slap at Germany for its remaking of the map of Europe.
It was from Eddie Cantor, whom the President described as an "old friend."

It read:
"May you and yours have a

More Congressional Control Of Spending Favored in Poll

Gallup Finds That Voters Want Legislators to Have Greater Say-So in Allotments; Oppose Giving
New Lump Sums to President.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Evidence of a growing public desire to see congress reassert direct control over how and where the administration spends money for relief and recovery is revealed in a national survey just completed by the Institute.

"With the issue of control over spending bound to rise in the next congress where the Democratic lead has been reduced, a huge majority of voters think their congress should no longer give the President lump sums of money to spend as he wishes. They want the national legislature to exercise greater control over how it is spent.

The public's attitude was expressed in answer to the question:
"In deciding where and how to spend federal money for relief and recovery, who should have the greater say, congress or the President?"

The vote was:

Congress 78%
President 22%

The study also reveals that the issue is not strictly a party issue for sentiment cuts across party lines. A large proportion of the rank and file of both Democrats and Republicans think congress should have the greater say in distributing funds. Republicans are more than 9 to 1 in favor of this principle, while Democrats divide 68 per cent for congress, 32 per cent for the President.

Fuehrer Approves War Renunciation Agreement With France and Will Send Von Ribbentrop to Paris

Hitler Also Meets South African Minister of De- fense and King Carol.

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany,
Nov. 24.—(P)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's approval of the proposed Franco-German peace declaration was seen tonight in the announcement that Foreign Minister Josch-ua von Ribbentrop probably would start "within the next few days for Paris" to sign the agreement.

The announcement was made after a conference of the two leaders which followed receptions by Hitler of distinguished foreign guests, Oswald Pirow, minister of defense of the Union of South Africa, first and then King Carol and Crown Prince Mihai, of Rumania.

Informed sources said the declaration would embrace three points:

1. A joint acknowledgement that peaceful and good neighborly relations between Germany and France constitute an essential element to the consolidation of Europe and maintenance of general world peace.

2. A statement to the effect that no territorial issues exist between France and Germany of a nature likely to lead to conflict. Each country, it was said, will declare solemnly that the other's boundaries are inviolable.

3. An agreement by both powers that, in event of international difficulties or points of issue concerning both, to enter upon joint deliberations.

French Foreign Minister Georges
Bonnet and German Ambassador Count Johannes von Welzeck in Paris took up the matter and it was continued by von Ribbentrop

SNOW BLANKETS MOST OF NATION

Freeze Chills Church- goers, Grid Fans Alike; 30 Under Zero Is Low.

By The Associated Press.

Snow blanketed most of the nation yesterday as sub-freezing weather nipped Thanksgiving churchgoers, chilled spectators at football games and glazed highways with ice.

The cold wave, dipping deep into the south, registered its lowest official temperature at West Yellowstone, Mont., with mercury 30 degrees below zero.

The swift-striking vanguard of a belated winter was accompanied by forecasts of colder weather throughout the east, south and northwest.

Arctic winds from the Atlantic attaining a velocity of 108 m. p. h. caused 13 deaths in Great Britain and resulted in extensive damage to shipping.

Snow in Georgia, Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi put a crimp in football and quail hunting, but Miami, Fla., reported a noon temperature of 80 with the beaches crowded. Meridian, Miss., had the first snow in many years.

Kentucky reported snow one to three inches deep over most of the state, while at Warm Springs, Ga., a cold rain that muddied dirt roads caused President Roosevelt to cancel plans to attend Thanksgiving Day services at the little white chapel for infantile paralysis patients there.

Near Zero weather gripped central New York with the coldest Thanksgiving in years. The town of Owls Head, known as the "ice box" of the state, lived up to its reputation with a temperature of 8 below.

Rochester reported a four-inch snowfall as a temperature of 6 above zero iced streets and highways.

At Leadville, Col., two miles above sea level, the thermometer touched 10 below, while in Montana, New Mexico and Utah, the cold wave that hovered around Zero or below for three days was banished by warmer weather.

SNOW, SLEET, RAIN SWEEP SUMMER WEATHER AWAY

Fulton County Commis-

gency Session to Provide

FOOTBALL FANS SHIVER AT GAMES

Head-on Crash Near Adairsville Fatal to Boy En Route Here for Visit

Cold weather slapped Indian summer with a hard hand over the Thanksgiving holiday and gave it a stinging blow that brought death from highway crashes and hunting accidents and threats of dire suffering for persons on relief rolls.

Snow, sleet or rain fell in virtually every southern state as temperatures plummeted, resulting in ice-glazed streets and highways and frost-covered fields all over Dixie.

Hunting mishaps killed one man in Georgia. Another death was recorded when a spectator fell dead of a heart attack while watching a football game. An infant girl was killed in an auto crash near Adairsville.

Thermometer Plummeted.
In Atlanta, the official weather thermometer stood at 33 degrees at noon yesterday, dipped to 31 degrees at 6:15 o'clock last night and was due to drop to 26 degrees—six degrees below freezing temperature—at 6 o'clock this morning.

The temperature was 31 degrees at Candler airport at 10 o'clock last night.

The quick change in the weather brought freezing temperatures to Atlanta and vicinity for the first time this fall.

The swift descent of temperatures as high as 70 degrees in recent days presented an immediate problem for 7,700 unemployables on relief rolls of the Fulton County Board of Public Welfare and Chairman J. A. Ragdale, of the Fulton county commission, called an emergency meeting of the commission for 10 o'clock this morning.

He said "Something must be worked out to provide fuel for these people," but did not amplify the statement except to say "the commission wanted to find some method to prevent suffering on account of cold." He expressed confidence a plan will be evolved at the meeting this morning.

Funds Were Asked.
In connection with the problem of providing fuel for those on relief, it was pointed out that Wil-

DR. W. C. TAYLOR WILL PREACH HERE

To Fill Pulpit Sunday at First Baptist.

Dr. W. C. Taylor, Southern Baptist foreign mission secretary of Latin America, will fill the pulpit at the First Baptist church Sunday in the absence of Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor.

Dr. Taylor will speak at both the morning and evening services. An outstanding missionary educator and preacher, he went to Brazil in 1915. He was dean of the Baptist Seminary at Pernambuco, Brazil, for nearly 20 years. He has been foreign mission secretary of Latin America for the past two years.

The pastor is conducting a series of meetings in the First Baptist church of Anderson, S. C. He will be there through December 2.

ONE-VARIETY GROUP.
DALTON, Ga., Nov. 24.—A group of 100 farmers met here yesterday and organized the Whitfield County Cotton Improvement Association, with Roy Wheeler, of Varnell, as its first president. E. L. Wallace, of Rocky Face, vice president, and Erwin Yaeger, of Center Point, secretary and treasurer. The organization will promote the growing of one variety cotton in Whitfield county. The meeting was sponsored by Congressman M. C. Tarver.

Youngsters Enjoy Thanksgiving Feast of Turkey.

Approximately 400 underprivileged in Atlanta enjoyed a Thanksgiving feast of turkey, dressing, cranberries and all the trimmings yesterday as guests of the Atlanta Mission.

The youngsters, who attend the Mission's Sunday school each Sunday, were brought to Mission headquarters, 125 Ivy street, in trucks. There they found a table loaded with Thanksgiving "goodies" waiting for them.

Preceding the dinner the children participated in a special

Thanksgiving service and afterward they joined in a song service.

The Thanksgiving dinner is one of the many projects sponsored by the Mission for underprivileged children. Funds for the dinner were contributed by interested friends.

EXPERTS FORESEE BOOM IN BUILDING

Large-Scale Housing Developments Lead in Residential Construction.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The United States in 1939 and 1940 may have the best residential building years since 1929 in the opinion of a number of executives in manufacturing industries interested in building construction.

A utility executive, who had just collected estimates of planned residential construction in this and a number of other leading cities compiled by local power service companies for their own expansion planning, predicted today that it was even possible that the 1929 figure would be surpassed and would reach back to all-time records of the mid-twenties.

A heavy industry manufacturer who depends for a major part of his expansion on new building prospects said that private capital was now entering the residential building field in "great amount" for the first time since the depression began.

Moreover, he said, some "fugitive" British and Amsterdam capital is being put, also in big sums, into new privately financed large-scale housing developments.

THREE MEALS A DAY

HOME TESTED RECIPES

BY Sally Saver

If you are lucky enough to have some turkey and fixin's left over, your meals today will be a simple matter and yet every housewife realizes that to make today's leftovers as delectable as yesterday's feast is a task worthy of her finest arts.

It is a matter of garnishes and arrangement for the most part. Alternate rings of minced and cinnamon pineapple on a bed of watercress will give a garnish equally smart for fowl or ham. Small baked apples with their hollowed centers filled with left-over salad or stewed fruits will add allure to any course. Cranberries take on a new flare when pineapple tidbits are added to the cooked berries. Vegetables reheated and formed into molds or with the addition of a cream or a cheese sauce take on new sparkle and interest.

SALLY SAVER'S FAVORITE RECIPE CONTEST.

Elegant dishes are undoubtedly delightful and call forth all the arts of the chef but we are practical people in these days and more likely to enjoy a simple meal than one composed of many fancies. For this reason, Sally's contest this week, emphasizes a "homespun" sort of meat that has every possibility of delectableness.

The prize recipes, you will find simple and inexpensive enough to be considered practical, yet unusual enough to satisfy the whim for novelty.

This one for cutlets of rabbit can be made with the parts left from roast or braised or fried rabbit, if desired:

Cutlets of Rabbit.
Make croquettes shaped like cutlets, using the chopped rabbit meat in place of other meat called for in the usual croquette recipe. Fry them in butter and dress on scooped baked apples filled with red currant jelly.

"Nothing is more delicious than rabbit pie, and here is an excellent recipe which I have used many times with success," writes Mrs. Austin E. Smith, 1170 Virginia avenue, Atlanta.

Rabbit Pie.
Skin, split and clean rabbit. Cut into pieces suitable for serving. Soak in an acidulated mixture (1-4 cups vinegar to every cup water) for two hours. Drain, wipe dry and dredge in a mixture of one-half cup flour, two teaspoons salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Put four tablespoons fat in heavy pan and fry floured rabbit until golden brown. Remove rabbit to baking dish and add to drippings one cup water and one cup evaporated milk. Stir well and pour over rabbit. Add two sliced onions, one dozen mushroom caps (optional), and several dashes of cayenne pepper. Cover casserole and bake for two hours in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit).

At end of that time, remove cover and drop spoonfuls of biscuit dough on top of mixture. Increase temperature to 375 degrees and bake one-half hour, or until crust is golden brown.

MRS. J. W. SHARP. Box 27, Young Harris, Ga., sends us her favorite recipe and writes: "My family never seems to get enough of this dish that we call 'Spanish Rabbit.' It is a one-dish meal, for you only need a dish, of cold slow to make it complete."

Spanish Rabbit.
Brown one cup of rice in three tablespoons of bacon fat. To this add two medium-sized onions (chopped fine) and a little pimento or green pepper. Then add one quart of canned tomatoes, cover and simmer one hour. Remove and dice meat from rabbit that has been boiled until tender and add to first mixture and cook until the meat is hot through. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

BARBECUED RABBIT.
1 dressed rabbit, cut into pieces
2 medium-sized onions
1 egg yolk
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 cup water
1 or 2 red peppers.

After the rabbit has been dressed and cut into pieces, salt and let freeze overnight. Place rabbit in roaster, slice onions into small bits over it. Pepper freely with black pepper. Cut up butter over it, next adding the vinegar and water. Last comes the red pepper. Bake in moderate oven for 2-3 or 3 hours, or until tender, basting often.

"STUFFIN' AND GRAVY."
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons chopped onions
2 cups stuffing
1 egg yolk
1/2 cup gravy
1/2 cup minced parsley
1/2 teaspoon celery salt
1/2 cup boiling water

Brown onions in butter melted in a frying pan. Add rest of ingredients. Mix lightly. Cover tightly and let simmer five minutes.

MASHED SWEET POTATO CAKES.
2 cups mashed potatoes
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons hot milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup diced celery
4 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons turkey fat (or any other kind).

Mix together the potatoes, milk, and seasonings. Shape into four cakes half an inch thick. Sprinkle with flour and brown in fat heated in a frying pan. Cover and cook for five minutes over low heat to allow the cakes to become thoroughly heated.

THANKSGIVING SALAD.
1 cup diced cooked carrots
1/2 cup cooked green beans
1/2 cup diced celery
2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickles
2 tablespoons chopped sweet fruit

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1-2 cup salad dressing
Mix and chill ingredients and serve in a bowl lined with shredded lettuce or any other salad green.
Other leftover vegetables may be used in place of those mentioned. Rinse off any sauce (with warm water) and chill the vegetables before making them into salad, however.

Spaghetti With Mushrooms.
Wash and peel one pound fresh mushrooms. Slice large mushrooms and leave small ones whole. Fry for about five minutes, or until tender and brown in butter to which about one teaspoonful of oil vinegar has been added for every 1-4 cupful butter used. Season with salt, pepper and remove from pan. Place one large (24 1-2 oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce in same pan and allow to heat thoroughly. Heap spaghetti in serving dish, surround with mushrooms and garnish with olives.

U. S. Celebrates Silver Jubilee Of Parcel Post

The growth of the parcel post system is one of the great success stories of American business. Postmaster Lon F. Livingston said here yesterday, in connection with the celebration of the silver jubilee of the service, now in progress over the United States.

"The system has developed from a volume of some $2,100,000 in 1913, to $140,000,000 for the fiscal year of 1938," he declared. "When John Wanamaker, famous Philadelphia merchant inaugurated the system by mailing the first package to President Taft, he set in motion a mechanism that has played a vital part in the present-day economical distribution system of merchandise. Wanamaker, as postmaster general under President Benjamin Harrison, was the leading business advocate of parcel post."

"Before the system was inaugurated, the rate for fourth class mail matter was one cent per ounce, the weight limit was four pounds, and the list of mailable articles severely restricted. Today, it is possible to send a package weighing 70 pounds and 100 inches in total dimensions," the postmaster continued.

"Geared into the system today are 44,877 post offices, 35,000 rural routes, and 5,000 motor trucks,

Santa Claus Arrives At Davison's

The merry old gentleman began his annual visit to Atlanta today, arriving at Davison's at 9:30. He was greeted by hundreds of anxious, wide-eyed children who stormed him with "Oh's," "Hello's" and "Bring-mes."

After the reception, which took place in the Ellis Street entrance of Atlanta's most beautiful Christmas store—Davison-Paxon Company—he was literally carried on the shoulders of the children to Davison's Toyland, where he mounted his throne and greeted his friends, whom he had not seen in eleven months.

The most popular man in the world who knows no nationality, creed or color, was surprised at the beauty of the new Toyland with its mechanical displays and myriad amusing and educational toys.

The real-honest-to-goodness-for-true Santa Claus will be in Davison's Toyland every day from 9:30 to 5:00, but he has to leave the store at 5:00 o'clock in order to broadcast his daily program to the children of the South, over station WSB, at 5:30, beginning December 5th. His broadcast, of course, will not be open to the public, but he invites every one of his little friends to be at their radios. His familiar theme song, "Oh, This Is the Way at Christmas," and forty other songs and hymns will be broadcast by Santa, and by getting one of his song books from him in Toyland the children may follow the songs and sing them with him each day.

If you weren't among those who greeted him, be sure to hurry down and renew your acquaintance with this grand old man.

"Trade at the Big Store"

Georgian, Successful Farmer at 18, Scorns Governmental Interference

Wareboro Youth Produces 800 Gallons of Syrup, 200 Bushels of Sweet Potatoes, Tobacco, Corn, Cotton and Livestock on 55 Acres.

WAREBORO, Ga., Nov. 24.—(P)—Eighteen-year-old Roy C. McDonald sat down to a tasty Thanksgiving dinner at his farm home here today, unworried by the problem of job-hunting that confronts others of his generation and asking nothing of Uncle Sam "except that we farmers be let alone with our farming."

Young McDonald operates a 55-acre farm, sees his future in agriculture and "wouldn't swap for any office job." On the farm he finds he is his own boss, and needs to watch nobody's clock.

Just now he is concerned chiefly with disposing of some 800 gallons of syrup made at an old-style, mule-powered cane grinder and syrup boiler on his place. He said he intends to sell for not less than 50 cents a gallon, preferring to store it if the price drops lower or market it still later as pork by feeding it to his pigs.

Depressions, past or future, hold no concern for McDonald. His philosophy of farm control is summed up as follows:

"Let the farmer plant too much tobacco, if he wants to. He won't plant too much the next year." For three seasons before 1938, McDonald's own tobacco crop netted only losses. He located the trouble last season, poor drainage, corrected it and this year produced a four-acre crop he said "would pay him out."

With old crop tobacco available for the auctions, McDonald figures he can give his tobacco land a rest, planting some crop that will build up soil vitality.

The boy made 200 bushels of sweet potatoes this year, 250 bushels of corn and had only five acres planted to cotton. He has 60 head of hogs, about 15 beef-type cattle and a milk cow. He is interested in feeding hogs by peanut pastures, figuring four acres of peanuts should carry one sow.

In his home storeroom he has some 80 quarts of string beans, about 80 quarts of tomatoes and an assortment of peas, peaches and other fruits and vegetables.

Although forced to assume adult duties on the farm at an early age, McDonald cheerfully admits he "likes to farm" and finds considerable satisfaction in the fact "we can scare up a good dinner for 15 or 20 folks on short notice, without worrying about a grocery bill."

Decatur Commission Members Unopposed

Decatur's proverbially "hot politics" yesterday simmered and cooled. As a result, for the first time in 15 years, three city commissioners will be elected without opposition in the December 7 election.

Those who will win without a contest in the election are Homer F. George, now rounding out his eighteenth consecutive year as a member of the city's governing body; W. W. Freeborn and Vernon Frank. Terms of two other commissioners, Scott Candler and Andrew Robertson, have not expired.

FARMING REDUCED.
More than 1,000,000 acres of land has gone out of cultivation in Manitoba since 1921. Professor J. H. Ellis, of the University of Manitoba, estimates in a report on soil conditions in the province. Only 7,789,920 acres were under the plow in 1936, compared with 9,022,738 acres in 1921, he reports.

The peak, involved more than 74,000 workers.

Dozens were injured on both sides and much of the Paris factory's machinery was reported wrecked before the Renault strikers, estimated to number several thousands, left the plant.

Premier Edouard Daladier, assumed complete control of measures to combat the strikers, which were called in opposition to the government's decree law for lengthening the 40-hour week. He ordered 4,000 railroad employees at Valenciennes into military service and told police to clear important Paris factories.

At the Renault plant the strikers had barricaded themselves inside the workshops and barred doors with armored cars and tanks manufactured by the plant.

The guards, commanded by Paris police prefect Roger Langlois, charged through back entrances after hurling tear gas bombs through the windows.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Nov. 24.—Penniless and hungry, a talented musician, who once received 47,000 fan letters in one week, was thankful today that he has fallen into the hands of Good Samaritans after days of suffering from lack of food and kindness.

J. Leslie Hall, 34-year-old concert organist, is recuperating in a Thomasville hospital, following his collapse on a highway near here Tuesday. He was found lying in a ditch, where he had fallen from sheer exhaustion due to lack of food and money.

He was on his way north from Florida, where fate had been unkind to him. Jobless and out of funds, he had started hitch-hiking his way northward.

Today he smiled gratefully at doctors, nurses and interns who have given him food and kindness and are bringing him back to health.

Minor Hoxsey, of Thomasville, found Hall lying in the ditch unconscious. A passing bus brought him to the hospital here, where an examination showed that he was not ill but simply exhausted from hunger. Soon revived, he was given food, and yesterday was able to tell something of himself.

Lieutenant Colonel Richard R. Daly, 72-year-old retired army medical officer, was found dead early yesterday morning in a wooded section near Emory University.

In the terse, cryptic language in which he issued orders for years, he wrote his last will, identifying his death as a suicide. It was found in one pocket. In part it said:

SEEKING MARKETS FOR COTTON.

Formation of the National Cotton Council and adoption by that body of plans to seek increased consumption of cotton, both in the United States and abroad, marks one more effort, added to many others, to solve the problem of the cotton industry. That the new council will aid in the struggle is altogether probable, but that it can provide anything like a complete answer to one of the greatest economic problems ever placed before a section for solution, is to be doubted.

The problem of cotton derives from more than one source. It is, in its entirety, a problem requiring such long range adjustment that any hopes of solution within a few years are foredoomed to disappointment. It will only be solved by a complete readjustment of agricultural practices in the south, by an entire change in the attitude of the southern farmer to his task.

Not only has the southeastern cotton producer been faced with a rapidly increasing production in other areas, but he has seen, at the same time, the invention of substitutes that have, inevitably, reduced some markets for his product. The widespread use today of synthetic fibers cannot fail to have cut into the potential markets, at least, for cotton. Although new uses have been found for the staple, it is doubtful if they offset, altogether, the loss of demand caused by the adoption of these synthetic substitutes in many industries.

The rapid increase in cotton production in the west, in Texas, Arizona and even in California, has forced a large reduction in production in states of the southeast. Georgia, which used to produce an annual crop of 3,000,000 bales, is now down to approximately 800,000 bales. Other states in this area can show comparable figures.

The foreign markets for American-grown cotton have, to large extent, disappeared. Competition from other cotton growing countries, combined with the strangling effect of the United States tariff policy and the shift from a debtor to a creditor nation, have already made almost fatal inroads into the foreign trade in cotton and, unless there is a miraculous reversal, that trade seems doomed to complete extinction.

Discovery of new uses for cotton, advanced by many as the solution to the puzzle, will, of course, help, but cannot be expected to take up the entire slack in both foreign and domestic markets.

The truth is the southern farmer will never solve his problem until he forgets a system of farming that permitted six months of comparative idleness out of every year. He must accept, as a corollary of his undertaking, a working year of full twelve months, with inescapable duties to be performed, on his farm, every day of the 365 in every year.

It is on such a basis of constant labor and close attention that the farmers of other sections have prospered and it will be only on a similar basis that farmers of the south can hope to enjoy that financial wellbeing and economic independence that is the goal of every man with normal, decent ambitions.

LONG NEEDED.

The request by A. W. Jones, Atlanta smoke inspector, to officials of the principal railroads operating in and out of Atlanta, that they meet here to discuss means of combating the smoke nuisance in the center of the city, is one which should receive the backing of every organization and individual interested in the welfare of this city.

For decades the smoke of railroad locomotives, pouring out from the tracks that cut a gash through the city's heart, has been one of the greatest handicaps in the development of a modern metropolis here. Today the nuisance is not as bad as formerly, but still it is all too common to see a locomotive belching great clouds of black smoke, to drift across the viaducts, to blacken the walls of buildings, to ruin clothes of passersby and to generally soil the fair face of Atlanta.

Whether or not the railroads can end this nuisance only an expert could tell. The economic difficulties in the way may be insurmountable. But in other centers it has, for years, been customary to use electric locomotives for switching purposes and to haul through trains into the depots from the outskirts of the city.

If this could not be done, it might be possible to use coke, instead of coal, in the switching engines, thus immediately doing away with much of the smoke.

Whatever the outcome of Inspector Jones' proposed conference, the entire city will watch it with interest and hope that it will result in less smoke in the air and soot on the buildings of Atlanta.

FOR PROPER FUTURE GROWTH.

Nations and economies, like men, grow up. Like men, nations and economies must pause at intervals to take stock of the past and examine the future. As man cannot grow helter-skelter, nations cannot grow without consideration of the manner of that growth and the direction in which their paths lead.

To pursue the analogy further, man progresses in the educational system through certain well defined periods. In grammar schools the trail has been marked out by others of more experience. At the door of high school, three roads are presented: liberal arts, technology and commerce. Whichever highway is taken, still others remain at its terminal: an end to formal education, the professions, technology again, and commerce.

So with a nation. The United States grew into an industrial economy, superimposed upon agricultural economy. The knowledge and the skill of the people of the country grew apace. Crises developed and passed; an expanding economy provided for all who would work in normal times. But, in 1929, a crisis developed which marked the end, let us say, of high school days. Since that time there has been an effort to chart the path under what has come to be known as the New Deal. In manifold ways this New Deal has shown a path which is smooth. It has attempted to alleviate the sufferings of those its leaders have termed the "one-third," and who have not progressed with the remainder of the body politic. But in other senses, there have been rough detours. Some have blamed technology, asserting this is not the path the country should follow. Still others have blamed commerce—big business—with the warning that the giant must be kept in chains. But the wandering has been aimless except that it showed that the scholar—the people—desired to raise the levels of the "one-third," that all might live in reasonable comfort.

Then, in the last session of congress, there was created the Temporary National Economic committee, which immediately became known as the Monopoly Probe committee and was conceived in the public mind as a professorial body which would question commerce in such a manner as would hamstring this phase of the economy in the pursuit of higher learning. For this belief, there was good reason, since, at the time of its creation, government as represented in the New Deal was engaged in an attack on this same big business which would be the subject of committee study. Many members of the committee had been closely associated in this attack.

Today, when the Temporary National Economic committee is on the threshold of its public hearings, this conception has been indicated a fallacy. The democratic freedom of expression and discussion has shown the committee members more in the light of a faculty body which, in all seriousness, will examine the structure under which we live in the hope of charting the nation's path in higher education. Rather, in further growth, since education is growth. The committee had within its power the most serious damage possible: that of another "witch-hunt" which would shake the confidence not only of the people but of the management of business which had come to the realization that "high school" days were over. Fortunately, under the chairmanship of Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, the members of the body determined upon something more than the usual congressional and administrative headline scavenging. The monumental task of a serious examination of the economic structure was undertaken.

The attitude may be best expressed in the words of Senator O'Mahoney that "I am certainly not of the opinion that either business or government is culpable, in the sense that they have been malicious, for the paradoxical situations in our economy—such as the paradox of poverty in the midst of plenty. But we do need to find the answers to these anomalous situations." He expressed the belief that "business ought to be set free from government controls in the sense that discretionary power to regulate business should not be vested in government officials. This is the road some nations of Europe are traveling. Neither do I believe, on the other hand, that business executives should be permitted to control government as well as business."

This being the case, it is time to throw away childish things; the nation has the choice of further growth and education in living, or of stopping short to grub for a living.

While an Indiana householder patched his roof, someone stole the ladder from under him. Many a success story turns out thus, if the truth were known.

Maybe women don't care for their new freedom. When last seen, little Czechoslovakia was cuddling up to Caesar and purring, "Oh, Adolf, you're so strong."

Even yet, they say, the little Dionnes don't know that their tonsils are removed. Some great tax collector is wasting his time at surgery.

Editorial of the Day

(From The Richmond Times-Dispatch.)
When the subcommittee of the Richmond city council, appointed to study a proposal to establish a housing authority in Richmond, last met, a few weeks ago, it laid on the table the resolution under which it was pursuing its studies until such time as "more information is presented and more groups of citizens let it be known they are interested."

Other cities are likely to encounter this same lack of interest in the establishment of local housing authorities, with the power to borrow money from the Federal Housing Administration for slum clearance.

There is offered an opportunity for the women's clubs of the state to contribute significantly to the discussion of a public question of importance, if they will simply go slumming for a year or two.

We have an idea that once the women's clubs become interested in the housing program, the slums will begin to recede.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

It will be a great mistake to regard what is happening in Germany as primarily a Jewish matter. A senseless gangster, Bolshevism, which for five years has been held somewhat in check by the more conservative elements, has broken out. The leading spirits in Germany today are Streicher, the madman of Nuremberg, and Goebbels, the "Minister of Enlightenment," who is totally ruthless, totally cynical, a careerist revolutionary of the Marxist type.

Germany, a great, industrious, civilized people, is in the hands of a gang, and the German government is a super-racket. The foreign correspondents have been trying for five years to tell the world that this was the condition of affairs.

Robert Dell, the veteran correspondent of The Manchester Guardian, wrote a book in the spring of 1934, "Germany Unmasked," which opens with a quotation from a diplomatist at that time stationed in Berlin. "The conditions here are not those of a normal civilized country, and the German government is not a normal civilized government and cannot be dealt with as such."

BEHIND A DECENT FRONT.

The real nature of Nazism has been concealed behind the front of the German diplomacy and the German bureaucracy as a whole, which the Nazi regime took over intact.

This bureaucracy and diplomacy is loyal to Germany, to Germany as such, no matter what regime may be directing them. The bureaucracy is extremely efficient, patriotic, loyal, confident of its own abilities, and politically stupid.

The same can be said of the German army, whose esprit de corps is superb but who have always constituted a sort of state within a state, with a motto to let politics alone as long as politics lets it alone.

The bureaucracy, the army and the foreign office have kept their positions, furnished a respectable front, believed, no doubt, that they were much more powerful states than they were or are, and that they could "influence" events while, step by step, the Nazi party, which is nothing more or less than a gang, destroyed every vestige of legitimate government in Germany.

The bureaucracy and the diplomacy, as well as every instrument of public opinion, now work with pistols at their backs.

Every kind of political, economic or social organization which might be restored order has been demolished. There are no political parties except the Nazi party, and it is not a party at all but a horde blindly following absolute dictation.

There are no trade unions which might have mobilized the working classes. Even the churches have become underground movements in so far as they remain religious bodies.

There was always the chance that in a showdown with any formidable outside force the army would mutiny or its most important officers resign en bloc.

There was always the fear that, with arms in their hands, the people would find new leaders to overthrow this terror.

The last check on the Nazis was removed by the conquest of Czechoslovakia, because with that conquest Britain and France made themselves powerless for foreseeable time. They gave away 34 divisions, enormous man power reserves, fortified industries and military industries which were on the precise spot where they would be most effective.

At the same time they confused the public opinion of the world and go on confusing it in the effort to plead their own case for bringing on the greatest catastrophe in many decades of history.

The intention is simply to hold up these relatives for ransom money to fill the coffers of a looted treasury.

The only hopeful sign is in England, where the by-elections indicate that the British people are beginning to wake up, despite the fact that the Chamberlain government is doing everything in its power to prevent them from getting the real story of what has happened in the last six weeks.

Old-Age Pensions.

The new thought given to the old-age pensions division of the federal government, the more convincing becomes argument for exclusive federal administration of this phase of the New Deal. The new thought is that the management of business which had come to the realization that "high school" days were over. Fortunately, under the chairmanship of Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, the members of the body determined upon something more than the usual congressional and administrative headline scavenging. The monumental task of a serious examination of the economic structure was undertaken.

The attitude may be best expressed in the words of Senator O'Mahoney that "I am certainly not of the opinion that either business or government is culpable, in the sense that they have been malicious, for the paradoxical situations in our economy—such as the paradox of poverty in the midst of plenty. But we do need to find the answers to these anomalous situations." He expressed the belief that "business ought to be set free from government controls in the sense that discretionary power to regulate business should not be vested in government officials. This is the road some nations of Europe are traveling. Neither do I believe, on the other hand, that business executives should be permitted to control government as well as business."

This being the case, it is time to throw away childish things; the nation has the choice of further growth and education in living, or of stopping short to grub for a living.

While an Indiana householder patched his roof, someone stole the ladder from under him. Many a success story turns out thus, if the truth were known.

Maybe women don't care for their new freedom. When last seen, little Czechoslovakia was cuddling up to Caesar and purring, "Oh, Adolf, you're so strong."

Even yet, they say, the little Dionnes don't know that their tonsils are removed. Some great tax collector is wasting his time at surgery.

There can be no fair criticism of the efforts put forth and the results achieved by the Georgia Department of Welfare, in this respect. The plan, in this state as in others, is faulty, but those charged with its administration have certainly done the best possible with inadequate arrangements.

In some states, however, there has been a disgraceful interjection of politics into the pension set-up. The federal government already pays pensions, direct, to large groups. Such as ex-soldiers, sailors and marines, former supreme court judges, civil service employees, teachers, etc. No one criticizes the methods in these instances.

The tax on wages and salaries for old-age benefits is collected from all alike, in all states. The benefits should be distributed just as universally.

A Sincere And Honest Effort.
The social security act was a sincere and honest effort to provide against human suffering and want. But the act, as it stands today, and as it is administered, is full of serious faults. Amendment and change is urgently needed. It should be one of the first duties of the new congress to so reform this act that present abuses may be promptly eliminated and equal treatment may be assured to the needy aged, no matter in what state they live.

Just working of the old-age pension law will do more to ward off the economic fallacies of such dreamers as the supporters of the Townsend plan, the $30-every-Thursdays scheme and similar impossibilities.

These aim at desirable results, of course, but their proponents seem to be entirely ignorant of the fundamental laws of finances and economics. The burden they would place upon business and government and finance is so great the result would be but an early collapse of the nation's financial structure, national bankruptcy and all the horrors of fast depreciating currency and uncontrollable inflation.

The objective of financial security for the aged is so desirable that no sane man or woman can do anything but applaud.

But, if the desire to achieve a desirable and sane goal becomes so compelling that sanity is forgotten, then the end is defeated before the campaign is begun.

The way to attain the sought-for goal is through economically sound and just adaptation of the present social security law, so that it will bring to realization the dream which originally inspired it.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.
From The Constitution of Tuesday, November 25, 1913:

"Lancaster, Mass., November 24.—Richard K. Powers, who claims close relationship to 'Mary' who is the heroine of a nursery rhyme about a persistent little lamb, has just celebrated his 103d anniversary here."

And Fifty Years Ago.
From The Constitution of Sunday, November 25, 1888:

"Albany, Ga.—Ed Ritters, a small boy, was nearly killed yesterday. He kicked at a passing wagon, which his feet became entangled in the wheels, and he was spun around and bent about for some distance."

GOOD MORNING
By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

"IF ONLY..."
Martha and Mary each said to Jesus as He arrived in Bethany following the death of their brother, "If only you had been here our brother would not have died," which means that through the long hours of those four days the sisters had been sobbing, "If only."

If only. If only. If only. These two little words, "if only," form a sad, sad refrain in human experience. "If only I had not taken that drink—if only," but it is too late when crazed by liquor some frightening act has been committed—a car driven over a helpless child, a friend murdered, a home broken up.

"If only I had not thrown the wrong switch they would not have died in the wreck," wails some poor soul, tossing the long nights through as he recalls a mistake that any frail human might have committed—"if only!"

"If only I had looked at the label before I gave the fatal dose," mourns the nurse yonder in New York state, reported to have given the wrong injection a few days ago to six victims—"if only!"

If things go wrong," writes Premier Chamberlain, "if things go wrong one can never escape

This Morning

By John Temple Graves II.

"With sympathies large enough to enfold All men as brothers..."

In the sure knowledge that sympathy alone is not enough southern leaders gathered in Birmingham early this week for a Conference on Human Welfare. For those things which make the south a problem and for those which make it an opportunity they sought action on science and fact. Representing many walks and ways of southern life, they could not agree on all the matters they discussed but they had enough in common to arrive at much in common and to be civilized even when they were not sympathetic.

Sympathy is not enough, but it must be if anything else is to be, and the blessed thing about the people who came to Birmingham early this week is that they have hearts for the tragic maladjustments that hold the south from its ways of round. They are looking honestly for the truth and the way.

Of all who took part in this Southern Conference for Human Welfare the one whose appearance interested us most was Vice President Prentiss Terry, of the Southern States Industrial Council. To be perfectly frank about it, Mr. Terry is likely to find that a lot of the people in his Industrial Council and also a lot of the people at the Human Welfare conference voted no at his presence there. They had a feeling that he had somehow gotten lost and fallen in with a crowd not at all his own. But we happen to know that Mr. Terry wasn't lost at all, that he knew exactly what and where he was. In his philosophy—which we share—the south will get no where now with its number one problem and its number one opportunity unless the southern "crowd" with which Mr. Terry is associated comes to more meetings with the southern "crowd" or, which, say, Dr. Frank Graham, stands.

The greatest of all present limitations upon the south's hope of progress, in our opinion, is that they get away from the concept of itself as containing the "crowds"—one New Deal, the other anti-New Deal. It can't realize that, for better or worse, the New Deal is dealt, that there are discredited old things, which will never return and proposed things which will never be long before.

There was a New Deal there was a south of problems and opportunities. Long after the New Deal has done its damndest or best there will remain a south of problems and opportunities. There is no sense in holding now to a state division. There is no sense in confining all judgment on everything to the one question of whether you like or dislike the New Deal. Time marches on, and we welcome Prentiss Terry, of the Southern States Industrial Council, as one who seems to understand time's peculiarity in this respect.

For southerners to make the south great now, solve its problems, realize its opportunities, the whole lot of us is required. That means industry as well as agriculture. It means labor as well as management. It means government as well as businessmen. It means social scientists as well as physical scientists.

In Roanoke, Virginia, last week we talked with former Governor Lee Trinkle and were happy to find his notion of the folly of continued New Deal-anti-New Deal division on everything in the south coinciding with our own. In the whole talk no word was said whether he liked the New Deal or disliked it, although he has his definite opinions. The great point was that there are more things in the south's heaven and earth now than are dreamed of or hated in the Roosevelt administration.

the reflection that I might have prevented this if I had acted differently. I believe it is that ultimate and inescapable responsibility that is the real root of the anxieties which have worn down the energies of our recent prime ministers," he continues.

"If only" the young student had been wisely and sympathetically advised he might not have quit his course in mid-year. He was brilliant and many were predicting he would be one of the finest surgeons of the nation, but the years are fled and old and broken and penniless and alone, he is ending his days in poverty—"if only!"

"If only" someone had spoken a kindly word to the discouraged, disappointed, lonely girl as she stood at the cross-roads—if only—but now, with health and youth and self-respect gone—everything gone—"if only!"

A depressing contemplation, you say, and indeed it is, but may we not take the words of the sisters in Bethany and look for a moment at them in the light of the Words of Jesus? He took their despairing "if only" and turned the words into joyous realization that He is the Resurrection and the Life—that when we take our troubles to Him, He makes all things to work together for our good. Selah.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

A VERY GOOD DAY Thanksgiving Day was most satisfactory. It began early. At about 5:30 o'clock in the morning a very drunk person called and wanted to argue about the New Deal. This is one of my favorite subjects but not at 5:30 a. m. That is the hour at which Indians attack.

At 9:30 o'clock there was breakfast at the Saddle and Sirlin Club's annual Thanksgiving Day ride. Very thankful indeed that riding was not one of the requisites for breakfast, that the rain did not come down hard enough to interfere, and that the brisk, pine-spiced air aided appetite; we felt to with enthusiasm whetted by hot, black coffee. Bill Turner's peerless crew was at the breakfast controls. The sausage was a work of art, properly mixed with sage and pepper. The bacon was superior, being the fat, white bacon cooked until it was cracklin'.

It was not necessary to "Heil" anyone nor to go around throwing up the right arm in a salute at meeting one's friends. It was an American scene and made one thankful to be in America where there is less tension and less of that quality which Secretary Ickes describes with the word "eneciable," meaning feverish. There is plenty of enecia in the totalitarian countries where there is a plethora of silliness in saluting and looking around over one's shoulder before expressing merely a commonplace opinion, or a witticism.

IT WAS A DAY FOR MUSING Yesterday was a day for less noisy and a sort of peace riding the winds heralding the real arrival of winter. I suppose only on the North and South American continents was it possible to feel relaxed and at ease.

It was a day for somewhat objective musing. Mr. Roosevelt's statement anent the Georgia state constitution which forbids the borrowing of money above the value of 7 per cent of the state's assessed wealth, was intriguing. There will be no change in that constitutional provision. There ought not to be one. The late Robert Taft, when the bill was passed to prevent carpetbaggers from plunging the state into debt, emerged from the capitol saying, "We have locked up the treasury and thrown away the key."

This was the state convention of 1877 and Toombs then was nearing his 70th birthday. He detested those whom he termed "vagrants parading in the name of patriotism." There was a tremendous lobby gathered to defeat the grim old man but he beat them. He then took the stump, after victory in the constitutional convention, and carried on a vigorous campaign.

He was a man set in his ideas. He wasn't, really, a citizen of the United States. He never took the oath of allegiance. What he saw in the reconstruction period made it impossible for him to take the oath. But Georgia never had a greater citizen.

It was one of Toombs' favorite statements that any man who changed his political ideas after 30 years was a rascal. He believed any man of 30 ought by then to have thought out the problem of politics.

There is no need asking the people of Georgia to vote away what Toombs wrote into the constitution. They know the bonded indebtedness of the state is less than $4,000,000. There will be worked out a way to obtain federal funds but not by amending the constitution and the Toombs proviso.

After all, the President's statement was not, perhaps, entirely fair. Georgia is doing its share in paying federal taxes. The figures show Georgia to be one of the few states to be paying more than she receives. Georgia is paying her share of the money which goes to other states and to pay for federal expenditures.

There will be found a way to obtain Georgia's share of the federal grants and loans, a share, which never has been equitable. There is the feeling, which will not down, that had the recent primary gone in another direction the statement never would have been made.

At any rate, no sensible politician would ask the people of Georgia to vote for a constitutional amendment to abolish the Toombs amendment and vote the state into debt.

"LORD! SEND FOR CROMWELL!" There are many great stories about Toombs. When he was on his death bed he had a moment of release from the coma which held him. He asked for the news.

"The legislature has not yet adjourned," they told him. "Lord! Send for Cromwell," he said, turning on his pillow. At another time they told him the newly formed prohibition party was holding a meeting.

"Prohibitionists," he said, "are men of small pints." One day a federal senator, with whom he had served before the War Between the States, asked him why he did not ask for forgiveness and return to the status of a citizen.

"I have done nothing for which to be forgiven," he said, "and besides, I haven't yet forgiven you fellows."

His was reckless and he was, at times, mistaken in his inflexible attitude.

But, right or wrong, no Georgian would vote to find the key which Toombs threw away, and unlock the treasury.

Trying to Get All the Eggs at Once Has the Same Old Effect on the Goose

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Are you familiar with the law of diminishing returns? The general idea is that a good thing pushed too far becomes a headache.

A skyscraper 30 stories high may pay a profit, but with every further increase in height the net return decreases, until at last the top floors become a liability.

A law to prevent a particular crime may become more and more effective as it is made more drastic; but when it goes too far it fails, for juries refuse to convict.

There is one of the simple and fundamental truths we must learn or remember. We cannot get back solid ground.

Another is the equally simple truth that the sum of the parts cannot exceed the whole. There is no way to divide five gallons

U. S. TURNS OVER HUGE CAMP TRACT TO GEORGIA GUARD

Stoddard Expects Work to Start Soon on 17,000 Acres Designed as Important Defense Unit.

The state of Georgia came into possession of 17,000 acres of land between Cornelia and Toccoa yesterday, to be used as a camp for the Georgia National Guard.

The acreage, leased from the federal government, was first obtained for a resettlement project, and later turned over to the War Department. Of the area, 1,600 acres will be under the jurisdiction of the national guard, and the remainder is permanently available for maneuvers.

Occupying a key position, it is expected that the camp will become an increasingly important unit in the government's national defense and training plans.

Work to begin soon. Ground work at the camp should begin within 60 days, Adjutant General John Stoddard, commander of the Georgia National Guard, said yesterday. The national guard bureau has given enough money to insure completion of a 50-to-60-thousand-dollar program with WPA aid, and Stoddard expects WPA approval of the project to come through shortly.

The state took over the land when Governor Rivers signed the lease agreement with the War Department, transferring the property to Georgia without cost.

Calling the transaction a great step forward, Stoddard pointed out that heretofore, Georgians had received their training at camps outside of the state. The $130,000 spent annually for summer training of the state's part-time soldiers now will be spent almost entirely in Georgia. In addition, Stoddard expects field artillery units from other states to come to the camp occasionally for training.

To Accommodate 12,000. Immediate plans have been made to accommodate more than 3,000 soldiers at the camp next summer. When completed, it will take care of a full strength division of national guard troops, or 12,000 men.

In Atlanta to see the Governor sign the agreement yesterday were Congressman Frank Wheeler, in whose district the camp is situated, and a delegation of prominent Toccoa citizens. The Toccoans expressed themselves as greatly pleased at having the new camp so near them, explaining that it should provide an excellent market for truck farmers of the region.

Present from Toccoa were Fred A. Stowe, Dr. J. H. Terrell, E. P. Bridges, city manager; W. J. Andrews, president of the Georgia Education Association; Dr. W. B. Schaefer, and Dr. W. L. Boyett, Major Frank E. Brokaw, detailed here as senior instructor of the national guard, was present also.

PICKETS KEEP VIGIL OVER STOCKYARDS

Thanksgiving Watch Guarded by Police; Conference Saturday Awaiting.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—(AP)—A holiday quiet virtually undisturbed by a handlers' strike which caused suspension of trading lay over the Chicago stockyards today.

Groups of pickets representing the striking CIO stock handlers' union tramped back and forth alongside acres of nearly empty pens and runways. Most of the animals in pens were entries for the International Live Stock Exposition, opening Saturday.

Pickets joked about Thanksgiving Day turkey dinners with 50 policemen who spent a leisurely day on "stand by" duty and reported no "incidents."

Both the union and the Union Stockyards and Transit Company, employers of the strikers, apparently awaited a mediation conference scheduled for Saturday morning.

Robert Mythen, a federal conciliator, said the situation was in "status quo," and that he expected it to remain so until the Saturday morning.

FOREIGN TRADERS ATTACK JAPANESE

Americans at Shanghai Join in Asking Governments for Remedial Action.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Foreign trade associations of eight nationalities pooled their efforts today to maintain treaty rights against Japanese military restrictions that hamper international trade.

The united front included the American Chamber of Commerce, the American Trade Association, the British Chamber of Commerce, British Residents' Association and Belgian, Canadian, Danish, French, Norwegian and Swedish chambers of commerce.

They forwarded to their respective governments recommendations for remedial action, including:

1. The prevention and abolition of all monopolies created in contravention to treaties and the policy of the open door in China.
2. Restoration of transportation facilities, with free access to markets and missions in Japanese-occupied areas.
3. Discontinuance of censorship and other interference with mail, cables, radio and other communications.
4. Resumption of dredging operations necessary for the maintenance of international shipping at the port of Shanghai.
5. Insistence upon the rights of nationals of neutral countries to pursue legitimate interests on the basis of opportunities equal to those of nationals of any other foreign nation.
6. Recognition and maintenance of extra-territorial status.
7. Restoration of Japanese-occupied sections of the International Settlement and future prevention of encroachments and interference with the settlement and foreign concessions (in Shanghai).

Construction will begin December 1, and will employ 60 young men of the community ranging in ages of from 18 to 24.

Ample space will be provided for teaching vocational agriculture, woodwork, and blacksmith work, and for a canning plant. Space will be provided for instruction in home economics.

Among "unlikely" sources of materials for automobiles, which nevertheless are commonly used are corn, sugar cane, hogs, flax and straw.

AIR DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM IS URGED

Navy Aeronautics Chief Warns of Danger in Slowing Experiments.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—The navy's chief of aeronautics reported today that increased outlays for aircraft experiments were needed to keep from "falling behind foreign countries."

Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook told Secretary Swanson in his annual report that the navy must have improved shore bases and additional tenders for the increased air force authorized in this year's billion-dollar fleet expansion act.

He urged further that more planes be provided to "accelerate realization of the expansion program."

The performance of naval aircraft "continuously improves," Admiral Cook said, but added:

"If the United States is not to be relegated to a comparatively inferior position in world aircraft, liberal allocation of funds must be made to permit intelligently directed experimental projects to be pursued actively."

Admiral Cook advised that every effort be made to "obtain adequate funds for a well-considered and comprehensive experimental program to effect continued improvement in aircraft and aircraft engine reliability and performance and to forestall our falling behind foreign countries in these respects."

Without disclosing details, Admiral Cook said the navy in the fiscal year ended last June 30 contracted for "a number of experimental planes. Congress provided $1,000,000 toward the cost of one giant flying boat now building, which is expected to represent an outlay of $3,000,000 when completed."

Rabbi Preaches in Pilgrim Church In U. S. Answer to Anti-Semitism

By The Associated Press. Racial and religious tolerance was the theme of the prayers and addresses of Americans on both sides of the Atlantic in Thanksgiving Day observances.

Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, speaking at the Thanksgiving dinner of the American Society in London, praised the democracies for their respect for the rights of minorities.

In Plymouth, Mass., where Thanksgiving Day originated, a young rabbi, Samuel F. Friedman, spoke in the Church of the Pilgrimage at the invitation of the pastor, Rev. Carl Knudson. The sermon, said the Christian minister, was to be "our answer to anti-Semitism."

"We are blessed," said Rabbi Friedman, "in living in a country where law and order abide for the welfare of its inhabitants; where its people enjoy liberty, and the right to pursue happiness."

A message of gratitude was sent to President Roosevelt by the 500 delegates to the annual convention of the Junior Hadassah, young women's Hebrew organization.

"We are thankful," they said, "for a government and a nation that condemns by word and act the terror and vandalism that certain other lands wreak upon their own citizens."

Liam E. Mitchell, chairman of the welfare board, had asked for $10,000 for the month of November and another $10,000 for December, to provide fuel.

The request was made several days ago, but commissioners at that time said it would be impossible to increase county expenses another $20,000 for the remainder of the year.

Mitchell then said it would be "impossible for the board to provide a single pound of coal or a stick of fuel for the 7,700 persons on the unemployment relief rolls," and urged the commission to reconsider.

He warned that sudden arrival of extreme cold weather "would bring suffering in its wake." Meanwhile, officials at the weather bureau said the "cold wave will die in Georgia and will veer northward and eastward."

Rain Tended Over.

They added that today will be clear and cold, and that precipitation is over, but freezing temperatures may be expected throughout the state, except on the extreme eastern seaboard.

Snow fell yesterday half an inch to three-quarters of an inch in northwest Georgia as far south as Tate.

Weathermen stated that Florida fruit will not be injured.

Victims of hunting accidents included John King, 18, farmer, killed at his home near Madison as he handled a gun to his mother, Mrs. L. H. King, when he returned from a hunting trip.

Another hunting accident victim was George Andrew Whitlow, 9, of Lanett, Ala., who was killed while playing with a shotgun which their father used on a hunting trip. His brother, Edwin Whitlow Jr., was seriously wounded. He was admitted to a hospital at West Point, Ga.

REV. A. LEE HALE DIES AT AGE OF 36

Recently Was Reappointed as Pastor of Peachtree Road Methodist.

The Rev. A. Lee Hale, 36, who was reappointed last week for his fifth year as pastor of the Peachtree Road Methodist church, died in a private hospital yesterday.

A veteran of 18 years' service in the North Georgia Methodist conference, the Rev. Mr. Hale was educated at Emory University and was transferred to Atlanta from Commerce, Ga., in 1934.

Previously he had been stationed at Deering, Greenville, Tate and Culbertson. Under his leadership, the Peachtree Road church had doubled its membership.

Funeral services will be conducted at the church at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning by Dr. C. C. Jarrell, assisted by the Rev. W. Graham Davis and the Rev. F. S. Hudson. Burial will be in West View under the direction of H. M. Patterson and Son.

Surviving are his wife, three daughters, Mary Ann, Ann Thornton Hale and Lee Hale; his mother, Mrs. George Thornton Hale, of Conyers; four sisters, Mrs. H. N. Copeland, of Rockmart; Mrs. Robert H. Thompson, of Atlanta; Mrs. J. R. Chapman, of Conyers; and Miss Louise Hale, of McRae, and three brothers, Robert L. and W. Stanton Hale, of Atlanta, and Hal G. Hale, of Conyers.

was wounded in the left leg while hunting near Fairburn. He was treated at Grady hospital, and then transferred to a private hospital. His condition last night was reported as "good."

The infant girl killed in an automobile collision was Frances Joyce Brown, two-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil L. Brown, of Chattanooga.

The accident occurred south of Adairsville yesterday morning when a car driven by P. Wright of Dearborn, Mich., traveling north, attempted to pass a truck and met the southbound Brown car head-on.

Wright and his wife were slightly injured. Mrs. Brown suffered a fractured pelvis. Brown and a three-year-old son, Donald, were slightly hurt, and a twin brother of Donald, Ronald Brown, was unhurt. They were taken to a hospital at Calhoun, Ga.

W. L. Wallis Hurt.

Another automobile crash occurred during the rain and sleet storm in which W. L. Wallis, of 104 Washington street, College Park, was injured. The crash occurred on the Roosevelt highway. Fulton county police said the Wallis car collided head-on with a car containing several negroes, none of whom were hurt.

Wallis was admitted to Georgia Baptist hospital. His condition was reported as "good" last night.

Death from a heart attack struck Jack Curran, prominent Savannah, a few minutes after the close of a football game between Benedictine Military school and Savannah High school.

Excitement, created by several long runs for scores by the Cadets in the final period, was said by physicians to have overtaxed Curran's heart.

Goal Post Injury.

Charlie Courtney, a member of the Cadet battalion, was seriously injured as an aftermath of this game also when a piece of pipe crashed down on his head. A group of youths dismantled one of the steel goal posts.

Rufus Lee Ward Jr., 11, of 694 McDonald street, S. E., was injured yesterday when he was struck down by an automobile at Boulevard and Fair street. He was taken to Grady hospital.

Rafael Rocha Schloss, charge d'affaires of the Colombian legation, also was instructed by the Bogota government to withdraw from Germany.

GEORGIA PRAISED FOR POLIO FUND

Birthday Committee Chairman Seeks '39 Leader.

The state of Georgia was paid a compliment yesterday by Keith Morgan, national chairman of the committee on celebrations of President Roosevelt's birthday to raise funds for the war against paralysis.

"Unquestionably, for complete participation, for the amount of money raised, and the methods by which funds were raised, the most outstanding work done by any state in 1938 was Georgia," he said.

He was in Atlanta to confer about a chairman for the next state campaign in 1939. He praised the work of Edgar Dunlap, of Gainesville, who headed Georgia's campaign this year.

Georgians gave some $50,000 toward the $1,200,000 total for the nation.

happy Thanksgiving. I am thankful I can live in a country where all leaders can sit down on Thanksgiving Day and carve up a turkey instead of a map."

Covers were spread for approximately 500 persons. Roast young turkey, with oyster stuffing was the main course on the typical American family menu.

The President delivered a five-minute radio talk to start the dinner off, afterward he told stories to the wheel-chair children and spoke informally as has been his Thanksgiving custom for years.

He missed the last two Thanksgiving holidays here, however.

The happy gathering sat down to four long tables in Georgia Hall, administration building of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation.

Since all the approximately 80 patients undergoing after-treatment here could not be seated at the table of the chief executive and his wife, they drew from a hat for the privilege.

As a result 16 patients from six states and Canada and ranging in age from 10 to 40 won the honor.

Next to the President was 23-year-old Margaret McCausland, of Toronto. Smiling Robert Rosenbaum, 11, from New Rochelle, N. Y., had a plate heaped high beside Mrs. Roosevelt.

Others at the Roosevelt table were Jean McGee, 11, Tampa, Fla.; Betty Kieghly, 10, New York city; Timmie Fryer, 12, Buffalo, N. Y.; Charles Evers, 36, Bloomington, Pa.; Isabelle Spaulding, 26, Keene, N. H.; Frances Clare, 14, Montreal; Adrian Shaffron, 13, Cedarhurst, L. I.; Mrs. Chester Monks, 40, Muncie, Ind.; and Nellie Scott, 25, Soda Springs, Idaho.

The dinner, also featured by skits put on by the children impersonating radio entertainers climaxed a dreary, wintry day that kept almost the entire colony indoors. Buffet luncheons and dinners beside open fires were held all over the foundation.

The day broke with a cold rain that changed to sleet, turning the dirt roads to sticky mud. Because of this, the President cancelled tentative plans to attend morning services in the little white chapel of the foundation, where the Rev. J. C. D. Wilson, of the LaGrange, Ga., Episcopal church, preaches the sermon.

Tomorrow, if the weather moderates, the President will make his annual visit to the Pine Mountain valley resettlement project 25 miles from here.

F. D. R.'S NEIGHBORS CELEBRATE TODAY

Pine Mountain Residents Will Display Accomplishments to President.

PINE MOUNTAIN VALLEY, Ga., Nov. 24.—(P)—Residents of this government-sponsored farm community gave thanks today for a bountiful year, but saved their real celebration for tomorrow when the President of the United States can be present.

Arrangements were complete for the some 1,000 persons now living in the 210 houses within the settlement to display their agricultural, school and co-operative accomplishments before President Roosevelt when he motors over from the Little White House at nearby Warm Springs.

The President has always been interested in Pine Mountain Valley, one of the early projects of the federal emergency relief administration. Since it was started three years ago he usually finds time when at Warm Springs to drive over for a look at the livestock and a chat with his farmer neighbors.

Now incorporated, the community has about 5,500 acres in cultivation. Part of this land is worked by the corporation, which also operates a community dairy, poultry unit, cannery, feed mill, shops and a store.

There is a community school, recreation building and playground, and a swimming pool is being built.

The 210 houses are built on "units" ranging from an acre and a half for non-farmers to 52 acres.

SANFORD IS CONFIDENT OF BUILDING FUNDS

Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System of Georgia, returned home from Washington yesterday predicting the state would shortly obtain approximately $2,000,000 in public works funds for the university building program.

"I hope that the effect of the President's Warm Springs statement will be to give impetus to a movement for having Georgia adopt modern legislation that will permit it to participate like other states in government benefits."

He referred to a statement by President Roosevelt that Georgia could expect no further allotments of public works funds until it amended its constitution to permit state borrowing to finance its share of projects.

Text of President Roosevelt's Talk At Warm Springs Holiday Dinner

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 24. (AP)—Here is the text of President Roosevelt's talk tonight at the Thanksgiving dinner to the infantile paralysis patients here:

We, the several hundred members of the Warm Springs family, old and young, are gathered here again for our annual Thanksgiving dinner.

But, before we attack the turkey, I want to say a few words, not only to you, but to many other people in every part of the country—on this day of national Thanksgiving.

First about Warm Springs itself. The physical picture draws nearer to completion each year. The ramshackle buildings of 12 years ago have either been completely modernized or replaced by new fireproof structures, and when I got here the other day I was delighted to see the new school house and the new medical center rising above the ground.

I am glad we are to have a school house because we know that it is of the utmost importance to have the education of the mind keeping pace with the re-education of the muscles.

Then, too, medical science has made such great strides in the past decade that the treatment of the after-effects of infantile paralysis calls for many new forms of hospital care in addition to the water exercises and swimming of the older days.

Today we have the tradition of work well done. We have also the same ideal of continuing progress, backed up by determination and courage. We are looking forward to the time when we can take care of at least 200 patients at all times—or, in other words, treatment for about 400 patients in a given year.

Several years ago we expanded the work of Warm Springs by helping communities throughout the country to raise money for the care of their own infantile paralysis cases, and, through their generosity, to give financial help to the cause of research into the origin of the disease. Last year we took a further step by establishing the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis; and after January 30, 1939, we hope to have permanent chapters of this national foundation in all of the more than 3,000 counties that make up the United States.

At the time of the birthday celebration half of all the funds raised in each county will be retained in trust for the chapters for local use and the other half of the fund raised will go to the national foundation for the national fight against infantile paralysis.

This Thanksgiving Day we have much to be thankful for. I wish that all who hear my voice could be with us and see this gathering of old and young in the big dining room at Warm Springs. We are thinking not of ourselves alone but of tens of thousands of other children and grownups and wishing for them that they may be having an equally happy Thanksgiving—lots of turkey and lots of fixins'.

an exclamation point for a lady!

Give her perfume at Christmas-time if you wish your gift to make love to her. If the emotion you feel be calm and detached... then, be sure to forswear it.

But a gift to quicken her pulse? Ah, that is another story. What, indeed, then can compare with exciting, exalting, exquisite, enchanting perfume. Perfume is her destiny distilled, her ecstasy's essence, her ego's essential.

Yes, give her perfume. And this is the best reason of them all... it will underscore her charm... intensify her individuality... add an exclamation point to a lady!

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

All day long I searched for the old salt for a close cross-examination on his "wind-out-of-the-west" theory, but apparently the old salt, the double-crosser, had gone west, or else he had melted in the rain, sleet and snow.

He gave assurance Wednesday there would be no rain on Thanksgiving Day. Which gives him an average very close to the one enjoyed by the local weather bureau.

It not only rained, of course, but there was sleet and snow, to boot. I don't understand it. I mean, I don't understand how it is that for six straight years now the annual Thanksgiving Day game has had nothing but the worst of weather.

Sometimes there was rain. Then, again, there was snow. And sleet, too. Yesterday, one of the worst of all days, there was a combination of all three.

Maybe that's the end of it. There is a chance that the weather of yesterday was weather to end all the bad Thanksgiving Days of the future.

I sincerely hope so. The annual freshman game for the benefit of the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children will come near filling Grant Field with people when the one day comes with a bit of sun.

The Scottish Rite people never have complained about the weather. It's only people like me, I guess, who get disturbed about it.

And Mark Twain had the real answer, at that. He said, "People are always talking about the weather, but they never do anything about it."

Sitting here in the press box at Grant Field, I cannot help but admire the spirit of the people who came to sit in the raw weather to watch the freshmen of Tech and Georgia go after each other hammer and tongs. They really didn't need the hammer, for the weather called for tongs—big, stout ice tongs.

The freshmen apparently didn't notice anything wrong with the weather, however. I guess this was due to the heat of their play. The annual game is a heart-warming affair, anyway.

So I guess it doesn't really matter, in the final analysis, if it rains, sleets and snows all at once. Nothing short of a flood would materially affect the program.

But I would like to see the old salt again—the old s—

NOT SO MANY GOOD BACKS.

Somehow the impression had got around there were a lot of good backs running loose in the south. But when you get around to picking an all-star backfield, the scarcity of top-flight backs seems somewhat amazing.

For instance, the all-star backfield this year probably will include Cafego, Tennessee, quarterback; Bronco Brunner, Tulane, and Parker Hall, Mississippi, half-backs, and Charley Holm, Alabama, fullback.

Now, Brunner was stopped on several occasions this season. Clemson beat Tulane, Auburn tied Tulane, Alabama beat Tulane. Brunner didn't do so well in these games.

Holm has been hurt a lot, and while Coach Frank Thomas says he is one of the best fullbacks he has had in a long time, I imagine Coach Thomas means this largely in a defensive sense.

Tennessee Wallops Wildcat Eleven, 46-0

Vols Overcome Jinx to Win Ninth Straight; Kentucky Earns One First Down.

By KENNETH GREGORY.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 24.—(P)—In the snow and slush of a cold Thanksgiving Day, Tennessee's Volunteers flashed a spectacular attack today to overwhelm Kentucky's Wildcats and ascend to the Southeastern conference championship.

The score, surprisingly one-sided in the face of the unfavorable conditions of a driving snowstorm and mud fetlock deep, was 46 to 0 and one of the worst defeats ever handed a Kentucky eleven in its ancient dueling with Tennessee.

The Wildcats from the Blue Grass, invading the Tennessee stronghold with an old "jinx" on their side—a ghost that had risen to thwart past championship hopes of the Orange-shirted Volunteers—were thrown back on their heels all afternoon by a smoothly functioning squad that committed few errors with a slippery ball.

USES ENTIRE SQUAD.

Major Bob Neyland, whose teams in the last 12 years have seen championships and post-season glory shield by because of the games, three administered by Kentucky, used his entire squad in amassing his eastern decision of a season that has seen nine teams fall victim to Tennessee.

The Tennessee skipper alternated his first and second teams to roll up a 31-to-0 advantage at halftime, featured by the great play of a stalwart line and Captain Bowden Wyatt, Georgia Cafego and Fullback Len Coffman. Then the major rocked along with his "shock troops" who piled up 15 more points in the final half against a foe that could muster only enough power to charge the first down and get stymied in the middle once on a recovered fumble.

The victory, Tennessee's sixth and clinching decision of the conference's wild 1938 campaign, saw the Volunteers remain among the nation's undefeated and untied teams, and an outstanding contender for post-season "bowl" honors. Tennessee has one more game, that with Mississippi on December 3 at Memphis.

FIRST SCORE.

Tennessee counted quickly after the opening kickoff, reeling off a touchdown in four plays that netted 58 yards, with Sophomore Halfback Bob Foxx dashing 25 yards on a reverse for the score on a beautiful play down the sideline after Cafego had passed to Wyatt for 19 yards.

Allen, the triumphant took the kickoff and marched to another quick score that presaged the inevitable rout. This time Tennessee drove 64 yards in 10 plays to score, with Cafego, the leader of the assault, going through a big gap in the line for the touchdown, after he had connected with a 14-yard pass to Foxx.

Near the end of the period, Coffman reeled off 32 yards before being pulled down on Kentucky's 12 and after the change of goals, Neyland sent in his second team. Sophomore Bob Anderson skidded around on a reverse to score from the 5-yard stripe. The Kentuckians were stopped at their 27 after the kickoff and a high snap from Center Sherman Hinklebein to Quarterback Joe Shepherd in punt formation was recovered by Tennessee on the Wildcat 12. In three tries Fullback Joe Wallen juggled the ball across for a fourth touchdown.

BABY TECHS WIN FROM BULLPUPS

Tipton Blocks, Webb Recovers Punt To Set Up Score.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Two blocked kicks on a muddy, freezing gridiron gave Norris Dean's Tech freshmen eleven an 8-to-0 victory over the Georgia Bullpups yesterday afternoon on Grant field.

About 8,000 fans braved the worst football weather of the season to see the Baby Jackets score a touchdown and a safety to even the Tech-Georgia charity series at three games each.

The Jacket touchdown came after a punt was blocked by Wendell Tipton and recovered by Tech's George Webb on the Bull-dog 15. Six plays later, including a 13-yard jaunt by Ralph Plaster, carried the ball over when Lloyd Boor crashed over on fourth down from the one-foot line.

KICK BLOCKED.

The safety was made late in the fourth period when Truck Kimsey, of Georgia, was attempting to punt standing in his own end zone. Albert Muerth, Tech tackle, broke through and blocked the kick, which bounced out of the end zone for an automatic safety.

The game generally was an evenly matched punting duel between Johnny Bosch and Charlie Sanders, of Tech, and Paul Kluk and Truck Kimsey, of the Bullpups. Bosch's quick-kicks and accurate punts out of bounds kept the red-shirts in hot water all afternoon.

Kimsey likewise punted the heavy ball well but had two of his boots blocked in the aforementioned instances.

Neither team's running attack could gain much yardage and Plaster's 13-yard sprint off tackle was the longest of the day. Once, Bosch got off on a nice 31-yard run to the Bulldogs' 4-yard marker but the play was called back and the Techs penalized.

CHIEF THREAT.

Georgia's passing was her chief threat with Heyward Allen and Truck Kimsey flinging a wet ball remarkably well. Kimsey completed two passes for nice gains but nothing became of the threats. The first was a 16-yard toss to End Tommy Malone and the second was good for 26 yards and went to Nub Welch, who lateraled to Billy Wingate.

Allen completed a 22-yard heave to Welch and threw several other accurate aerials, but cold fingers missed the wet ball.

The Baby Jacket big line was

Boswell and Bradford Star in Tide Victory

Former Averages 46 Yards Punting Wet Ball; 'Bama Marches 72 Yards for Score.

By LEROY SIMMS.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 24.—(P)—Charley Boswell warmed the hearts of a shivering, partisan Alabama crowd of 25,000 here today by blasting through the Vanderbilt line for vital gains in the Crimson Tide's 72-yard march for a 7-0 victory in their traditional Thanksgiving Day battle.

Vic Bradford, 'Bama quarterback, took the ball over from the one-foot line on the first play of the final period after Boswell and Pig Davis, playing fullback in place of the injured Charley Holm, had smacked out six consecutive first downs in a drive starting from the Crimson 28.

That march was the ball game, although superiority in punting gave the Crimson their other chances, one of which bogged down on the Vandy five in the closing minutes. The contest was played in bitter cold, with snow falling in the final seconds.

46-YARD AVERAGE.

Boswell, a Birmingham boy who had been somewhat of a disappointment in early games, kicked a soggy ball 10 times for an average of 46 yards, an amazing performance in view of inclusion of one out-of-bounds boot near the Vandy goal which went 18 yards.

The Commodores from Nashville played a spirited tricky game, but their running attack netted only 25 yards and their only real scoring chance was the result of an attempted field goal by Bradford, which was low and was blocked by Ellis, and picked up in the middle by Captain Preacher Franklin, who might have run to a touchdown, but who stopped when he grabbed the ball.

Little Bert Marshall passed to Housman for 8, and Huggins made it first down on the 'Bama 38 and a 15-yard penalty against the Crimson put the ball on their 22, but a field goal try was short. Vandy never threatened again.

After a first period devoted to punting, Mosley and Davis smashed the line for three first downs in a drive to the Vandy 11 before Bradford attempted his field goal midway of the second quarter.

TOUCHDOWN DRIVE.

The Alabama touchdown drive started late in the third period. It featured slashing drives off the tackles, and netted the distance across the goal in 18 plays, all inside the end zone and without a pass being called. The drive was completed by a 22-yard heave to Welch and threw several other accurate aerials, but cold fingers missed the wet ball.

MIAMI DEFEATS BUCKNELL, 19-0

Hurricane Scores Inter-sectional Victory by Land and Air.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 24.—(P)—An alert Miami football team picked up an easy first-quarter touchdown, hurled back two Bucknell challenges and surged on to a 19-0 inter-sectional victory before a crowd of 12,648 today.

The opportunist Miami pounced on a break midway of the opening quarter and quickly converted it into a touchdown. Frank Funair, Bucknell's safety, fumbled a punt and Walter Kichelski fell on the ball for Miami. Mike Corcoran promptly flipped a 23-yard pass to Eddie Dunn in the end zone.

Bucknell's aroused Bisons got the ball on Miami's 22 on a penalty but relinquished it a yard short of pay dirt. Altogether Bucknell had five shots from two yards out, since Miami was offside once, but couldn't get across.

In the second quarter Lou Tomasetti, Funair and George Kuck led a 51-yard Bucknell advance that missed by a scant three yards. Came the third period and a substitute named Carl Jones to harass the Bisons. This time it was a 75-yard touchdown sweep, with Jones' 46-yard romp setting it up and Substitute John Noppenberg getting the credit. Jim Moore place-kicked the point.

The victory evened Miami's score in four inter-sectional games this season. The Hurricanes lost to Drake and Catholic U. then beat Duquesne and Bucknell. Bucknell by period: 0 0 0 0-19. Miami scoring: Touchdown, Dunn; Noppenberg (sub for Fox); points after touchdown, Moore (place kick).

Southern California Power Swamps U.C.L.A. Eleven, 42-7

Trojans Start Slow But Rally For Great Win

Winners Tie for Lead; Given Inside Track on Bowl Bid.

By ROBERT MYERS.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—(P)—Southern California's Trojans crushed the hapless Bruins of University of California at Los Angeles under a 42-to-7 score today and immediately set up a clamor for the nomination as the far west's representative in the Rose Bowl game.

Sixty-five thousand grid fans watched the Trojan machine gain momentum after a shaky first half, and hand the battling Bruins their worst licking in many a year.

The Southern California triumph would up the Trojans' conference schedule and left them in a tie with California for the Pacific Coast conference championship. The ten members of the league will now vote on which team, U. S. C. or the Golden Bears, will go into Pasadena's famed game next January 2.

Each has won six conference games and lost one—the Trojans to Washington, California to the Bruins.

Southern California was a 2-to-1 or better favorite to trim its crosstown rival today, but no one dreamed the victory would be such a top-heavy one.

The Bruins, dominating play for the better part of the first two periods, scored first when they got the ball on a Trojan fumble at the kickoff. Kenny Washington, the giant negro halfback star, ran and passed the Bruins 34 yards and fired a 10-yard touchdown pass to Woodrow Strode, his dusky end. The try for the extra point was good.

The Bruins continued to run the Trojan drive in the middle of the second quarter.

With the ball in midfield in Troy's possession, Jimmy Jones, a substitute back who seldom gets a chance to play, broke loose on a 51-yard gallop. He was hauled down on the 1, but Jack Banta, another reserve, smashed it over. The conversion was blocked by Johnny Ryland, U. C. L. A.'s great center.

Bruin fans cheered, but not for long. Al Gruesser, a sophomore end, intercepted one of Washington's passes and traveled 52 yards across the goal, and as the half ended, Troy led, 13 to 7.

C. S.'s first team came out roaring in the third period, and when the Bruins on fourth down gambled for a yard and lost, Greenville Lansell, Bill Sanger and their varsity mates smashed down field 47 yards in eight plays.

That was the beginning of the avalanche. The Trojans drove 35 yards to the one-foot mark, surrendered the ball on downs and then collected a safety when Bill Fisk batted down a Bruin pass in the end zone.

The Trojan second team took the field and early in the fourth completed a 57-yard parade, with Ollie Day scoring. A Bruin lateral was dropped back of the line of scrimmage, the Trojans recovered on the U. C. L. A. 16, and eight plays later the stubborn Bruins surrendered another touchdown.

As the game waned, one of Washington's bullet passes bounced out of the receiver's hands into the arms of a Trojan, and in six plays the machine, now sprinkled with third and fourth-string men, hammered to a touchdown.

Fourteen first downs to four, 272 yards running to 36—that was Southern California's statistical bid for Rose bowl consideration today.

Score by periods: 7 0 0 0—7 U. S. C. A. scoring: Touchdown, Strode. Point after touchdown, Frawley (place kick).

'BIG' JACKET TAKES STANCE AGAINST BULLDOGS

James L. (Shorty) Brooks, hard-smashing guard for Georgia Tech, is one reason why the University of Georgia will have its hands full when the two schools clash in their traditional encounter Saturday at Athens. The "little giant" was slightly hurt in practice this week, but is expected to be ready in time for Saturday's game.

Tech, Georgia End Rough Work for Tilt

Large Crowd Is Expected To See Game in Athens; Injuries Hamper Both Elevens.

The Tech and Georgia football teams have finished rough work and are impatiently awaiting the kick-off in the annual classic Saturday at Athens.

The Techs, supposed to work on pass offense and defense yesterday morning, were forced inside by bad weather. This afternoon, they will conclude pre-game practice with the usual light Friday drill.

Reports from the flats say hopes for Billy Gibson, ace tailback, playing Saturday are fading fast. The speedy runner has a bad charleyhorse on his left leg which apparently doesn't want to heal quickly.

If Gibson can play at all, it will be for only a few minutes. Bobby Beers and Joe Bartlett are expected to divide time at his position.

OTHER CRIPPLES. In addition to Gibson, several other Jacket mainstays are on the cripple list. Walter Rimmer and Allen Wilcox are the most serious casualties. Neither is expected to play although Rimmer may get into the game for a minute or so.

J. L. Brooks, ace guard, suffered a slight knee injury in practice Wednesday but will be ready to go against the Bulldogs.

The Georgia squad also is not in the best condition. Marvin Gillespie, end, and Dooley Mathews, wingback, are definitely out.

Tackle Bill Badgett and End Ned Barbre are also hurt but may play part time.

The game looms closer than first glance shows although the Techs will enter the fray as favorites. Georgia can score and has done so on all her opponents. However, the Jackets are one of the most rugged in the country and the fast Bulldog backs will find going extremely tough.

LARGE CROWD. One of the largest crowds of the season is expected to watch the two historic rivals battle it out for the state championship, if that means anything.

Both teams have lost three games, but Tech's defeats have been by much closer scores than the Bulldogs'. The Jackets have played the much harder schedule and have not yet turned in a bad game against some of the country's best teams, including Notre Dame, Auburn, Duke and Alabama.

Verne Murrah Heads Bobby Jones Golfers

Verne Murrah was named president of the Bobby Jones Golf Association, replacing Don Gavan, who has led the association through one of its most successful seasons.

Other officers are: Harold Spears, vice president; Lee Godfrey, secretary; and Eddie Rich, treasurer.

In addition to being named officials of the association, Murrah and Godfrey won turkeys, Murrah won medal honor in a recent tournament and Howard Reed and Godfrey, winning in a draw.

Ted Huff and Lee McClure won turkeys for low gross scores and Carl Thompson, Bob Bennett and J. S. Pope were others who won turkeys.

70,000 GRID FANS SEE PENN'S LINE PULL BIG UPSET

Quakers March to Cornell 23-Yard Line as Game Ends, 0-0.

By SID FEDER.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 24.—(P)—A gallant Pennsylvania line, smashed and sometimes cracked wide open when in rival territory, picked itself up off the freezing and rain-soaked ground each time it found itself in danger to hold highly-favored Cornell to a scoreless draw in the 45th renewal of this ancient Thanksgiving Day gridiron rivalry.

Before a shivering, huddled crowd of 70,000 who just about jammed Franklin field to the rafters, this Pennsylvania forward wall fought forward foot by foot with the hard-charging Big Red forwards who had battered Dartmouth only two weeks ago, and tossed a big surprise into the turkey day grab bag.

Then in the closing minutes, the Quakers, a credit to the first year coaching of George Munger, set off some fireworks of their own with an aerial march that traveled 57 yards and ended only with the final whistle on the Cornell 23-yard line.

The Quakers were an inspired ball team for this old foe. Although they couldn't prevent Cornell from winning the mythical " Ivy " league championship, unbeaten by any of the seven schools in this long-standing group, the Quakers uncovered their best game of the season to upset all expectations.

Once in the first half, and three times in the second, Cornell started in its own territory and drove forward on long marches, with Vinnie Eichler, Harold McCullough and George Peck pounding at the line, and Big Bruh Holland ripping off chunks of yardage on his vaunted end-around sprints. But just when it seemed that the Quaker forward wall was all through, those linemen pulled themselves together to stave off the scoring threat.

RUSSELL DOWNS FULTON- 33 TO 0

Russell High ended one of its best football seasons with a 33 to 0 victory over Fulton High Thursday morning on the East Point Field. A driving rain, combined with snow and sleet, ruined otherwise perfect home-coming day ceremonies.

Starting slow, Russell gained momentum as the season progressed and Thursday climaxed a six-game winning streak, the last six on the schedule.

Russell scored on a variety of plays, and handled the ball unusually well, despite the heavy rainfall.

Larry Dodd intercepted a Fulton pass and sprinted 75 yards to a touchdown, for one of the best plays of the game.

A lateral, Bobby Bowen to Darryl, and a 26-yard touchdown jump, and another lateral to Morris, were other outstanding features.

Russell gained an early advantage and led 26 to 0 at the half, holding Fulton without a single first down.

Coach R. L. Bowen used the reserves throughout the second half and scored another touchdown.

But Tuesday night he was blocked by an attack of appendicitis, brought here for an appendectomy and today was in a hospital bed while his team lined up for its big game of the year against Georgia Military College.

Gordon End Misses Season's Last Game

MACON, Ga., Nov. 24.—(P)—Sidney Cheatham, end on Gordon Institute's football team, figured he was lucky when he escaped with minor bruises in a bus accident last Saturday.

Fulton gained a couple of first downs in the second half, but was never in danger of scoring.

ATHENS HI TIED BY GAINESVILLE

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 24.—In the last game of the season Gainesville High, contrary to all odds, played an 0-0 tie with Athens High here today in a hard-fought and muddy battle.

Gainesville, supposed to be the weaker of the two teams, put up a fierce fight. In the first half Gainesville outplayed and out-gained the Athens boys, and Athens was hard pressed to stop them at the goal line.

In the last half Athens held the lead and was close to scoring several times, Miller getting away on a 35-yard run to the five-yard line, where Gainesville held.

Starring in the backfield for Gainesville, Potter made several long gains through the line. Evans and Godfrey were good for free-lance yardage in the backfield. Adenholdt played a splendid defensive game. Morrison, a fine end, gave Athens plenty of trouble.

Delong was a stumbling block in Athens' path. For Athens, Miller and McWhorter were the chief ball carriers. The line as a whole played fine ball.

VIRGINIA STATE UPSETS MORGAN

ETTRICK, Va., Nov. 24.—(P)—Virginia State College (negro) spoiled the six-year undefeated record of Morgan College, Baltimore, with a 15-0 triumph here today. Morgan had a string of 43 consecutive victories.

Virginia State, guarding a 1938 undefeated record, scored a safety in the first period and added touchdowns in the second and fourth. It checked Morgan's most serious threat in the waning moments on the State seven-yard line.

Decatur High Wins NGIC Championship

Bulldogs Defeat Commercial, 19 to 0, in Final Game; Ralph Kennerly Is Star.

Decatur High School's Bulldogs regained the North Georgia Inter-scholastic conference football championship with a 19-to-0 victory over Commercial High Thursday morning at Decatur. The game was played in a driving rain mixed with sleet and snow, the first unfavorable weather in which Decatur has played this season.

Unable to gain any ground in the first quarter, both teams resorted to a punting game and awaited a break which never came. Decatur staged a 60-yard drive in the second period and scored on short pass, Ralph Kennerly to bell. Kennerly kicked the point from placement.

Two more touchdowns were added in the final, due to Commercial errors. The first came after Decatur recovered a Commercial fumble and Pierce swept around end for the score.

Decatur blocked a Commercial punt and Pierce again circled end for the scores shortly before the game ended. It was the thirteenth time this season Decatur has blocked a foe's point—an N. G. I. C. record.

Ralph Kennerly, who has been outstanding for Decatur in every game this season was again the star. His forward passing, running and kicking was well above the average. His punting average was 41 yards. Bradford, of Commercial, averaged 38 yards.

Decatur finished the season unbeaten but has a tie with Athens High. The DeKalb team beat Toccoa, Russell, Fulton, Marietta, Gainesville, LaGrange and Commercial for its best season in recent years.

Coaches Martin and Shi, two former University of Georgia stars, have done well with Decatur this season. Their material was nothing sensational and the squad looked like an ordinary group at the beginning of the season, but by some hard work and fine co-operation from every member of the squad, a championship was won.

Decatur was not particularly heavy, but depended entirely on speed and deception for victories. Decatur was outwitted in every game except two.

HALL IS BIG STAR AS BROWN BEATS COLUMBIA, 36-27

Sid Luckman Gives Lions 3 Touchdown Passes in Fourth.

By BILL KING.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 24.—(P)—Irving (Shine) Hall, a direct descendant of such illustrious Pilgrims as Captain Myles Standish and John Alden, gave Brown much cause to rejoice on this Thanksgiving Day by contributing four touchdowns and three extra points to its 36-27 victory over Columbia.

Hall, himself a father, for he was married as a sophomore two years ago, ended his college football career by tearing the Columbia line to shreds until he retired, with the Bruins leading, 36-7, in the final.

Although he made many a long dash through the Lions' secondaries, his longest touchdown run measured 30 yards. His other three scores were short-range smashes from Columbia's nine, seven and five-yard lines.

SCORES THREE TIMES. After scoring three times in a row, this football son of the Pilgrims set off another successful drive from Columbia's 35 by contacting Johnny O'Leary with a 20-yard aerial and then alternating with "Bones" Stepczyk, who spelled Captain Larry Atwell at left half, as Brown traveled to Columbia's three-yard line. The Lions turned back two plunges before O'Leary completed that scoring advance.

Sid Luckman, who gave an amazing exhibition of his passing skill in the last period against the Bruins' substitutes took off late in the opener, after Columbia's (the University) Robert Taylor, gave him the nod by recovering Atwell's fumble on Brown's 18. Luckman tossed to Johnny Siegal his favorite receiver on the one-yard line and then plunged over himself.

That great aerial artist then was grounded by the vigilant Brown backs until they had completed their scoring and withdrew.

LUCKMAN CUTS LOOSE. With 10 minutes to go and 29 points behind, Luckman cut loose against their replacements by whipping a 65-yard touchdown pass to Johnny Naylor in for Art Radvillas. The Lions gained the ball twice thereafter and Luckman's overheads enabled Columbia to travel 99 and 35 yards and Siegal to score twice.

Wake Forest Beats Davidson 21-0

WAKE FOREST, N. C., Nov. 24.—(UP)—Wake Forest's sophomore-dominated Deacons trimmed Davidson College 21-0 here today in a Southern conference game, scoring in each of the first three periods. Five thousand fans braved a rainstorm to watch the game.

Davidson drove 65 yards to the Wake Forest 5 in the final period with a series of lateral passes, but the Deacons held.

Rayon, Flannel and Gabardine in Robes

Simple Sharp Stripes in the Rayons, Solid Colors and Tartans in Flannels—Adjustable Cuff Is Convenient Feature

By ROBERT FAIRCHILD EDITOR MEN'S FASHIONS

In the matter of robes, the most interesting development is the great strides that are being made by rayon. This interesting man-produced fiber can be made, as you may or may not know, to specification—to give a soft effect, a sleek effect, a rough effect, woolly, cottony, silky. This versatility is appropriate for such a garment as a dressing gown, where so wide a latitude of taste prevails.

Luxurious rayon is good in simple sharp stripes. Sometimes it carries satin stripes or flannelled figures.

Solid-color flannel robes, quite plain.

Rayon robe with satin stripes—it's black and white.

The important new robe fabric is gabardine, in wines, blues, and black-and-white, as well as rust, tan, bluish-green, powder-blue, and blue-gray. Gabardine, of course, is a smart fabric right now, throughout the wardrobe.

A special feature in some robes is the adjustable cuff, with a removable cuff-link. This obviates rolling up the sleeves when you want to make them shorter, or when your wife decides she wants to wear your robe.

ICKES 'CRACKPOT,' DIES DECLARES

Would Oust Interior Secretary, Perkins and Hopkins From Government.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Representative Dies, Texas, declaring today that citizens cannot "feel secure" with "crackpots" in high governmental positions, suggested that Secretaries Harold Ickes and Frances Perkins and WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins resign.

They should take with them, he added, "their army of satellites" and thus restore "confidence in government" and harmony to the Democratic party.

"It is a consummation devoutly desired by the overwhelming majority of Democrats," he said in a statement.

This was the latest development in a feud between Ickes and Dies growing out of testimony before the house committee on un-American activities that the secretary was a member of the American Civil Liberties Union. The union was described in previous testimony as a red organization.

Yesterday Ickes called Dies the world's outstanding "zany" and characterized testimony before the committee as "garbage."

Dies, chairman of the committee, countered today with a declaration that the secretary's "most recent fit of uncontrollable rage only emphasizes his unfitness for the high position he holds."

"The secretary literally reeks with the venom of hatred," the Texan went on. "It flows from him as naturally and freely as water from a spring."

INSURGENTS REPORT CRUSHING VICTORY

Claim Government Salient on Segre Smashed by Franco's Fighters.

HENDAYE, France.—(At the Spanish Frontier)—Nov. 24.—(AP) Crushing of the Spanish government's salient on the west bank of the Segre river was reported today in insurgent dispatches.

Insurgent dispatches said Generalissimo Francisco Franco's fighters had scored a complete victory. The sector lies in northeast Spain about 30 miles northwest of the Ebro river battlefield which the insurgents cleaned up November 17.

Operations in the Segre zone were reported to have thrown back the government troops to positions they held before undertaking their offensive which was launched during the Ebro river fighting.

As the military campaign came to a climax there, government dispatches said 51 persons were killed and 153 wounded by insurgent bomber attacks on Barcelona in the last two days.

Insurgent advances on the Segre sector fighting said the final operations on the west bank of the river succeeded with the recapture of the village of Seros.

They reported that the insurgent garrison of Seros, which had been cut off near the Seros bridgehead, had been relieved as government troops withdrew to the Segre's right bank.

Insurgents asserted the government troops had occupied a front of only seven and one-half miles in their surprise thrust across the Segre November 7 with about 24,000 men, but fell back now before insurgent counter-attacks to escape a rout.

TVA TOWN FULFILLS DREAM, NORRIS SAYS

NORRIS, Tenn., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Senator George W. Norris, the veteran Nebraska liberal, spent part of Thanksgiving Day inspecting this TVA village and Norris dam, nearby, and commented tersely: "It's a dream come true. I am very pleased with everything."

A member of the joint congressional committee studying the nation's phosphate resources, Norris said the TVA had made "tremendous strides since I was here two years ago."

New Deals of U. S. and Old Rome Compared as Warning Is Sounded

Classicist Points to Disastrous Results Which Followed Experiments Such as Price-Fixing and Crop Restriction by Ancient City.

A warning against putting too much "old wine in new bottles" was issued yesterday by Professor J. A. Tolman, of Georgetown (Ky.) College, as he drew a comparison between the "New Deal" which preceded the downfall of the Roman Empire and the New Deal of the United States.

Reading a paper on "Ancient Civilization in New Bottles" at the opening of the three-day meeting of the southern section of the Classical Association of the Middle West and South at the Biltmore hotel, Professor Tolman pointed to the disastrous results of "too much government" in financing and overtaxation in Roman history.

Price-Fixing Tried.
"The Method the Romans used in attacking their difficulties was very much the same as that used today," he said. "They were opportunists, seeking immediate relief from present ills rather than a permanent reconstruction of the economic life."

Professor Tolman said 2,000 years ago the Romans tried such reforms as price-fixing, crop restrictions, soldiers' bonuses, experiments in state socialism, inflation, public works programs to stimulate employment, government loans and inheritance and sales taxes.

The professor said he would not conclude that the history of Rome is being absolutely repeated in the United States. "But," he added, "there does seem to be a startling resemblance between the social, economic and governmental problems that the Romans faced and tried to solve and our own."

The principal difference, he continued, is that the Romans required nearly four and a half centuries to try to solve the problems of relief.

"We have moved faster," he said. "Within less than 10 years we have had the NRA, WPA, CCC and AAA, government security against destitute old age and unemployment, federal protection for collective bargaining and federal housing."

The speaker made it clear he did not mean to discount some of the plans. "Certainly our government, like theirs, has done and is doing much for us and telling us what to do," he said, but added, "we have not found a solution yet."

"Our taxes are growing larger than those of the Romans ever were," he said. "We are in debt over $35,500,000,000, and more than $1,000,000 are out of employment."

He urged that the United States take a lesson from the Romans. Sessions of the classical convention will continue today with other papers on various subjects. Dr. Clyde Pharr, of Vanderbilt University, president, will deliver the presidential address today and a business session will be held tomorrow.

When Sickness and Emergencies Come, Someone Has to Pay Bills

Sound Your A Loudly And Get Your Vitamins

By Dr. William Brady.

Remember how we tried to explain the significance of tone the other day. Self-contained automatic regulating apparatus in the wall of the intestine. Auerbach's plexus or substation of the autonomic (sympathetic) nervous system, and Meissner's plexus, governs the gastro-intestinal function. Thus: "Giddap, hump yourself!" says Auerbach's plexus, and the muscle layer of the alimentary canal responds with a contraction, which would amount to colic were it not for Meissner's plexus which calls "Easy, easy, old girl, steady, now!" and holds back on the reins just enough to keep her pacing smoothly. This may not be quite accurate, but it will convey some idea of the significance of tone, resiliency, poise, fitness to function normally.

It is essential to bear in mind the fact that the conscious mind or will has no direct control over tone, and for that matter no medicine that purports to be a "good tonic" has any lasting influence upon tone. Tone is rather a matter of nutrition, not just ordinary nutrition but optimal nutrition.

Difference between ordinary nutrition, the state of most people who are not sick enough to go to a doctor but still not so well as they might be, and optimal nutrition, the state of perfect health and vitality which few are able to attain, is, in my crazy judgment, principally a prolonged habitual or lifelong shortage of calcium and phosphorus, sunshine vitamin D, and vitamin B complex (which is the natural B factor including G or B-2 and several other entities not yet completely identified).

Instead of trying this and that medicine which may or may not produce some temporary effect upon one or another of the impaired functions, the individual whose health is under par must make the necessary corrections in his diet and in addition supplement his diet with certain of the essentials above mentioned. What is still more important and frequently not sufficiently impressed upon the mind is the fact that the remedial measures, which bring about the desired rejuvenation or restoration of resiliency are not medicine but simply food. This is important to remember, because, although it may be possible to produce certain effects with medicine and retain the benefit after the medicine has been discontinued, one does not expect to enjoy any benefits derived from nutrition unless one maintains the nutritive intake at the optimal level indefinitely.

On the other hand some doctors who had little or no scientific knowledge of the subject, conceived the notion that too much of this or that vitamin, especially sunshine vitamin D, might produce disastrous consequences, and these unenlightened—or perhaps subsidized—doctors propagated among the laity the wholly groundless fear of giving the baby a few more units of vitamin D than the baby should have daily. Extensive observation and experience in giving enormous doses of vitamin D daily over periods of many months have proved beyond the shadow of doubt that it is virtually impossible to do any harm by even enormous daily rations of vitamin D or any other known vitamin.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Iodine.
Wife has effect like poison ivy if she puts a drop of iodine on a cut or scratch. Water blisters form and the skin swells and itches. Would it be safe for her to take your Iodine Ration? She thinks she needs it. (A. G. E.)

Answer—If she is hypersensitive to iodine she should begin with very small amount—say put a drop in glass of water, and take only a teaspoonful of that solution daily for a week, then increase daily ration by a teaspoonful a day until she can take the regular ration, without disagreeable reaction.

Deafmutism.
My parents are deafmutes. They have four children, none deaf. I have three children, none deaf. My father was said to have become deaf after a fall when a child. Mother was said to have been bitten by a dog causing brain fever, after which she lost her hearing. (Mrs. R. L. C.)
Answer—Thank you. As a rule, when both parents are deafmutes, one-fourth of the children will be deafmutes. However, in three-fourths of such families (both parents deafmutes) the children are all normal. If only one parent is a deafmute and the other normal, the children are usually normal. A Thrifty Wife Encourages Man To Succeed

By Carline Chatfield

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I have heard and read so much on both sides of the question of working after marriage that I am completely befuddled, so instead of tossing the coin to decide the matter, my fiancé and I have decided to ask you for your opinion and abide by it. Here's our story. The fiancé has to contribute to his widowed sister's support as her income is not sufficient for her family and she cannot work. The amount I am now making is about the same as he gives her. With the strictest economy we can live on what's left of his salary but there won't be much for emergencies. The fiancé prefers that I give up my position, though he isn't insistent about it and says he is willing for me to do as I think best. What do you think?

D. AND C.

Answer:—Could you two exercise a little patience, postpone your marriage until you have saved a sum to meet possible emergencies after marriage? If you can, it seems to me this would be the best way around the difficulty. It's easy enough to say that a woman should give up her office job when she marries, live on what her husband makes and do without what his salary won't pay for. But when sickness and other emergencies come to a young couple who have no savings and no bank credit, somebody has to pay the bills.

Yet it's undeniably true that it takes something out of a man to see his wife get up in the morning, fix the breakfast, make the beds, grab her hat and go out to earn the money for the rent and the groceries. One of them said to me the other day, "I haven't lost my grip but I've taken a terrible licking. I have never got over being hacked when I've seen my wife drag out of bed half sick, to go to the office. I've hated myself for it and as much as I love her and as much as she loves me I wouldn't do this if I had it to do over again."

There it is in a nutshell: The man who can't support his wife takes a terrible licking and if he isn't made of good stuff he loses his grip. So I think that if you can put the egg in the nest before you are married you will do well to retire from business when you are married as your fiancé wishes you to do, even though it means that you must practice strictest economy.

A game young man can't have a greater incentive to success than a thrifty wife who's willing to deprive herself of luxuries, live on his small income, believe in him and cheer him on to go over the top. CAROLINE CHATFIELD. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

Bridge Hand Can Cause Painful Complications

By Harold Sharpsteen.

Pains in the stomach and other recurrent symptoms of indigestion are not always traceable to over-indulgence around Thanksgiving turkey time. Witness this hand, mailed in the other day by a gentleman of letters who declares his digestive system goes on a rampage just at the thought of it.

The bidding:
South: West North East
1 Spade Pass 3 Hearts Pass
3 Spades Pass 4 Notrump Pass
5 Notrump Pass 6 Spades Pass
7 Spades Pass Pass Pass.

SEVENTEEN WINNERS.
As West opened the Heart 4, South counted 17 tricks in the North-South hands—five spades, five hearts, two diamonds and five club tricks. South's only worry seemed to be centered around the outstanding trump King.

The facts are, West held the Spade King singleton.

TIME FLIES BY.
But back to the opening lead and the subsequent play that followed. To West's opening heart lead, a low heart was played from dummy. And then "the lightning struck." East trumped with the spade 5 and returned a club. West trumped with his singleton Spade King, returning another heart which East ruffed with the only other trump outstanding, the spade deuce.

NICK CARTER VICTIM.
Of all the disheartening examples of duplicitous and time factor ever crowded into two hands, Nicholas Carter, author, who summers in Asheville, N. C., and winters on the Isle of Sanibel, Fla., believes this is the prize.

To make matters more disturbing, Carter explained, West could not offer a satisfactory reason for opening hearts, except that he held S—K; H—85432; D—J7543; C—None.

South will always maintain West was a villain at heart or he would have opened his fourth best diamond.

Liquid Powder Base Keeps Skin Fresh, Retains Make-Up in Veil of Loveliness

By Lillian Mae.

You'd never think, just to look at it, that it would do it. But just try it for yourself. I, too, had to be convinced, because liquid foundations aren't generally suitable to my skin.

This liquid cream makes the skin feel so cool, soft and altogether lovely when it's applied—only a small quantity for the normal skin, perhaps a bit more for a too-dry complexion. You merely pour a bit of it into your palm and apply with light, feathery strokes over neck and face, gently around your eyes, and blend carefully for just a moment—then permit to dry. It won't take long.

If you have used too much—if there is any trace of dampness—remove surplus with tissue. Your skin, now ready for your make-up, will feel as fragrantly fresh and clean as a flower after a spring shower.

This liquid cream is really a perfect foundation. It will never cause powder to cake or flake, because it is not at all sticky or greasy. And it DOES NOT enlarge pores or cause those already enlarged to look more conspicuous.

Not only is it a beautifier and powder base, but it actually protects the skin from weather elements. If you're not well pleased with the way your skin looks, I'll be terribly disappointed.
I always like to find out the who's and why's of beauty preparations of which I am particularly fond, so I delved into the history of this item which is one of a line new to Atlanta, though it has been popular in New York and larger cities of this country and Europe for six years.

My investigation revealed that the manufacturer—a famous French designer of women's clothes—became dissatisfied with the faces that were marred by the effect of her handiwork, and set about experimenting with ways by which she might improve upon the complexion which through neglect or wrong treatment, were so handicapping her in her efforts to make women really beautiful.

The result is the lovely line of toiletries to which this balm about which I am so enthusiastic belongs. I'll be glad to tell you its name and the Atlanta stores at which you may purchase it if you'll phone me at my office in The Constitution building. If you do not live in Atlanta write me enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

My Day: A Feeling of Welcome From People of South

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—One of the delightful qualities of the south is that the people do give you a feeling that they are very glad to see you. When we arrived from Atlanta, Ga., by the night train, we were not only greeted at the train by some very delightful people, who must have arisen at a very early hour to be there, but the porter at the hotel seemed to envelope us in a kind of welcome which could only be extended to an old friend. From then on everyone gave us the same sense of being glad to welcome us "home" again.

Mr. Aubrey Williams had breakfast with us and seemed somewhat disturbed by the fact that something he said yesterday had been misquoted and misunderstood. I assured him that the people whose opinion is worth anything, always take the trouble to verify any really important statement, and that no one would expect that an extemporaneous speech could be reported without some inaccuracies and misinterpretation.

After a press conference, at which Mrs. Bib Graves and I sat side by side, but at which I confess she did not help me very much in answering the questions, Mrs. Ralston and Dr. Petrillo took me out to the WPA archaeological laboratory. It is an extraordinarily interesting project, but what seemed to me remarkable was that this work which requires so much knowledge and skill is being done by WPA workers who never before reconstructed a pottery vase from fragments found in a burial mound, or rearranged the bones of skeletons or reconstituted a skull from a variety of fragments.

From the results of this work, one woman is actually making water-color sketches, showing the life of the Indian tribes in this vicinity. In other states archaeological projects such as these are carried on through the university laboratories, but in Georgia and Alabama these facilities did not exist, so this laboratory is a rather unique contribution to the education of the state, as far as its past is concerned.

We stopped for a few minutes, on the way back, at the community center near the negro housing project and looked at pictures of a proposed housing recreation ground in this vicinity, which would serve a quarter of the negro population of the city. The project is needed, that nobody questions, for negro youth has no well-equipped playground in the city, but where the money is to come from seems to be the difficulty.

This sounded very familiar to those of us who know things are needed but find it hard to discover the money by which to obtain our objectives. I hope, however, that they will be able to work out the solution to these important problems, for there is danger in any city when a large part of its young people are without adequate recreational facilities.

Back at the hotel, I attended the panel discussion on working conditions, wages and hours for women; lunched with some of those who are responsible for this southern conference on human welfare, and then went over to spend an hour and a half at a meeting on youth problems.

Of Interest to Women

Q. What is the test to tell butter from oleomargarine?

A. Melt a bit of the fat in a pan and if it is pure butter the liquid will foam freely; if it is oleomargarine, it will foam very little and will sputter.

Q. I am a wife of a farmer and I want suggestions for suitable Christmas gifts for city friends, preferably things to eat, that I can make.

A. Few things are appreciated more than homemade mince pies, pumpkin tarts, plum puddings or fruit cake. If you have a cellar stocked with jams, jellies, etc., the glasses may be attractively wrapped and tied in colored cellophane.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a 3-cent postage stamp and mail to The Woman's Editor, Washington Service Bureau, Atlanta Constitution, 1013 13th street, Washington, D. C. for a personal reply. Three of the most interesting answers will be printed here daily. Don't telephone; write as directed.

Mental Relaxation Requires Muscular Relaxation, Also

By Ida Jean Kain.

"Sour puss" is an inelegant term but it very accurately depicts the way some women let their faces grow grim. Remember when your mother used to warn that "your face might freeze in that expression?" Some women let it happen—and what a frozen asset a face can be! It is tension that does that to faces, and nothing is so ageing.

We all take life too seriously and it shows in our faces. This seems to be particularly true in large cities where the pressure of living is the greatest. The best advice I ever heard against worrying came from a doctor, and was to one of his patients who had nothing in the world wrong with her except overwork.

"You only have one life to live, and at your age you have only about 15 more years to live. You can either go on worrying and be ill from the effects of it, or you can change your philosophy and be well. Whenever anything worries you unduly, learn to say 'to hell with it.' The lady was a bit shocked, but she did try the formula and it has worked like a charm. She looks years younger.

If this phrase is a bit stringent for you, think up one of your own. It is the mental slant that counts, and the ability to deprive your worries sometimes helps to put it in its true perspective.

It would pay all of us, I believe, to learn to make a few molehills out of mountains.

After you learn to relax mentally you must learn to relax your muscles. You can do this and at the same time step up your circulation by exercising with the feet higher than the head. Beauticians now claim this is the best facial you can take.

Try it out, with your feet propped up on the arm of the divan, or on the footboard of the bed. Don't have the pillows under your head, have them under your hips to make you more comfortable as you elevate your weary feet. This upside down position sends a fresh flow of blood to the face, and if you do it for 20 minutes a day it will—according to the claims—give you a new face.

To relax the corners of the mouth from that set, determined line and to erase the nose-to-mouth lines, try the old stunt of blowing up a balloon while lying in this angle. This is another step-up for the circulation.

The ups-a-daisy angle is the best possible position in which you can take your exercise—and it will leave you feeling fresh as a daisy. In this position the objection to raising the legs to flatten the tummy is eliminated, since the legs are already high enough to prevent strain on the abdominal muscles. Raise the legs alternately high overhead. When you have exercised enough this way, turn over on the side and raise and lower the upper leg.

If you can steal an hour from a busy day to lie in this position, you can look 10 years younger in no time at all.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 24.—"Midnight" . . . Claudette Colbert watches Director Mitchell Leisen while he shows her how to play usual, he wears riding boots, she compliments him briefly, and then does the scene her way. (Claudette is a better director for Claudette than the best megaphonist in the business. She knows what she can do and what she can't. If they leave her alone, she does a good job.) . . . Miss Colbert's hair for "Midnight" is a hangover from "Zaza"—masses of red-gold curls that deduct 10 years from the actress's slightly-over-thirty age. . . . John Barrymore is Claudette's opposite in this scene—which takes place in a fashionable bedroom. The dialogue blackboard is there as usual, but John somehow continues to blow up just the same. Every time this happens, he says in a funeral voice, "Once upon a time there was an old man who had a long beard." Everyone smiles—except Miss Colbert.

Stage Is Set in Athens for Tech-Georgia Football Game Tomorrow

State University To Celebrate Homecoming in Honor of Visitors

By Sally Forth.

ALL roads lead to Athens today and tomorrow. For tomorrow afternoon brings about the high light of the sports season when the varsity football teams of Tech and Georgia meet for the annual gridiron clash to be played at Sanford stadium in Athens.

Football enthusiasts will resort to every means of transportation in order to reach the Classic City in time to witness the thrilling conflict between the two bitter rivals. Air-minded individuals will take to the sky, those undaunted by traffic will travel by motor, and conservatives will cling to the usual mode of transportation by train.

Sally hears that a few determined alumni members of the schools will follow "the road to Athens town" on foot in order to give support to their respective alma maters!

The university, as you know, is celebrating homecoming this week end, and a continuous program of activity has been planned in honor of the occasion.

Woodruff Hall will be the scene of four gay dances to be enlivened by the swing music of Jimmy Dorsey and his famous band. The dances will be sponsored by the Panhellenic Council, and will honor alumni members of the college.

Lovely Helen Pardue, of Aiken, S. C., will lead the Panhellenic lead-out on Friday evening with Charles Evans, president of the council, and valuable member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. The grand march of nonfraternity men will be led by Miss Evelyn Camp, of Rome, and Wilson Still, a campus leader, who also hails from Rome.

One of the enjoyable features planned in connection with the breakfast dance tomorrow morning at Woodruff Hall will be the exhibition of the "Peachtree Switch," the latest contribution to America's dancing hits. Georgia Williams, who has starred on Broadway, will give an exhibition of the latest step with her partner, Eddie Lee. Georgia originated the step and her desire to dance it before the "home folks" at this week end's gay social season will no doubt launch the new hit 100 per cent.

Another interesting feature of homecoming week end will be the exterior appearance of sorority and fraternity houses, which will be amusingly decorated in an attempt to quell Tech's ego. A prize will be awarded the organization producing the cleverest effect. Sally was not surprised to hear that club members have pondered for weeks in quest of novel decorative ideas.

Downtown Athens will be transformed into a festive scene by the use of Georgia's red and black banners waving above doorways and Tech's gold and white colors stretched across the streets.

One of the many high lights of Saturday's pigskin battle will be the official adoption of the bulldog as Georgia's mascot. The ferocious canine has for many years been a tradition at the Garlands of flowers connected the trees and seven-branch candelabra holding burning yellow tapers, were arranged at either end of the table. At the end of the ballroom the fireplace was banked with palms and over the mantel was a large basket of bronze-shaded chrysanthemums.

Miss Mary Fisher, of Detroit, Mich., the guest of Miss Judy King, was among the popular visiting belles attending the party. Guests included 500 members of society's married and unmarried contingents.

Miss Pierce and Mr. Duke Wed At Afternoon Church Ceremony

The Georgia Avenue Presbyterian church formed the setting for the beautiful nuptial ceremony at which Miss Margaret Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Grady Pierce, became the bride of James Boyd Duke, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Duke, at 4 o'clock yesterday. The Rev. Dr. Robert Ivy, pastor of the church, read the marriage service which was witnessed by an assemblage of friends and relatives of the young couple.

Palms and giant ferns were massed against the rear of the church altar to form a background for the pedestal baskets filled with giant white chrysanthemums which featured the decorations. Flanking either side of the mass of foliage were tall standards topped with seven-branched candelabra holding white burning tapers. A mound of white chrysanthemums centered the altar, and the pews reserved for members of the two families were marked by tall clusters of chrysanthemums.

The bride's cousins, Miss Dorothy Guy, organist, and Miss Marion Guy, soloist, presented a program of music during the assembling of the wedding guests.

Miss Annie Ruth Boggan was the bride's maid of honor and only attendant. She was beautifully gownned in Dubonnet chiffon velvet, cut street length, and worn with a close-fitting velvet hat of the same shade. A shoulder cluster of exquisite white orchids completed the bridal costume.

Worry, Worry

THE COWBOY AND THE LADY

When Mary Fails to Return to the Ranch, Stretch Goes to Palm Beach to Find Her

By LEO MCAREY and FRANK R. ADAMS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.
Undeterred by the fact that her father, Judge Smith, is conducting a campaign for the Presidential nomination, Mary Smith falls in love with a cowboy at a Palm Beach rodeo and marries him on a boat en route to Galveston. She goes home to break the news while her bridegroom, "Stretch," Wiloughby, proceeds to the Montana ranch where he works to prepare a home for her. The news of Mary's cowboy elopement is a bitter blow to her father, who fears the effect on the public and on Boss Henderson, political bigwig who is coming to a reception at the judge's home which will decide his political fate. Mary promises to keep her marriage a secret until after the reception. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT III.

Mary, touched by the quick by his disappointment, burst into sobs. "Of course I'll stay, Dad. Please don't worry, it may turn out all right yet. I'll stay and do anything you want me to."

She ran to him, threw her arms around his neck, and burst into sobs.

Stretch, in a state of high excitement, busied himself about the ranch. It was the day when Mary had said she would join him, and now the train from the east was almost due.

He poked his nose through the ranch house kitchen door.

"Ma! Ma Hawkins!"

The adopted mother of the cowhands turned around with good-natured ire. "What's bittin' you?"

"It's about those thingamajigs—those new curtains for her room."

"New curtains?" snorted Ma. "Ain't gonna be no new curtains. Think I'm gonna do over the whole house just for her?"

She pushed him out the door—to confront a ranch hand who gave her away by asking, "Hey, Ma, where you want these new curtains hung up?"

"Get out—both of you!" shrieked Ma. "How many times I got to tell you not to come bustin' in to my kitchen!"

Stretch continued making an exuberant nuisance of himself around the ranch. And then the telegram arrived. Ma Hawkins handed it to him and watched him while he read it. He slowly crumpled it, no longer playful, and threw it away.

"It's from Mary," he said slowly. "She ain't comin' today. Next week, maybe."

It seemed to Mary as though the day of her father's reception would never arrive. But here they all were at last, sitting about the judge's festive table—the self-important members of the national committee and their even more self-important wives. And at Mary's right hand sat Oliver Wendell Henderson, the boss supreme, who could make or break an aspirant for office. At Mary's other side sat her beloved Uncle Hannibal, a debonair college professor, aging in years but young in spirit, whimsically cynical at his brother's presidential ambitions, but sympathetic just the same because the judge was, after all, his brother. And at the head of the table presided Judge Smith, nervously pompous, acutely anxious as to the result of the reception, full of nervous forebodings about his daughter's secret marriage.

"Your father," Henderson was saying gallantly to Mary, "has magnificent qualities, but I must admit I was never aware of them until I met you."

"Mr. Henderson, you're a dangerous man," coquetted Mary.

"Enough to turn any girl's head," put in Ames, one of her father's campaign advisers.

"Oh, no," replied Henderson, "not this one. If all the young ladies in the country were as safe and sane as Mary I'd feel a little more secure about our future!"

In the adjacent kitchen Katie, the cook, was presiding over the dinner, aided by her friend, Elly. It was only her long schooling in surprises that prevented Katie from dropping the platter of fillets mignons when Stretch marched into the room through the back door of the house.

"W-w-well! Wh-what do you want?"

"Hello. Where's my wife? Where's Mary?"

"Oh! Er—she ain't here."

"Guess she's upstairs," said Stretch, looking around. "Will you tell her I'm here—just got in town. I was worried about her, so I thought I'd come and take her home."

"She don't work here any more," said Elly, the quick thinker. Stretch, more concerned than ever, demanded to know where Mary lived. But Mary, it seemed, was very close-mouthed about such things. Then Stretch had an idea. He would go in and ask Mary's boss where she could be found. And before they could move a muscle, he was striding into the dining room.

Stretch brushed aside the expostulating butlers and went toward the dinner party at the other end of the long dining room. Then he espied Mary sitting at the foot of the table, and stopped dead—completely at a loss. Mary sat watching him, white-faced and rigid, making no sign of recognition.

"This is the home of Judge Horace Smith, sir," repeated one of the butlers, overtaking Stretch. "I'm quite sure you've made a mistake."

Stretch was beginning to see it. "Yeah, I guess I made a mistake all right," he agreed ironically. Slowly, thoughtfully, he turned to go.

But Uncle Hannibal the sophisticated—Hannibal the quizzical iconoclast, had sized up the situation and decided to have some fun. He called to the young cowboy.

"Wait a moment, young man! Why don't you sit down and have dessert with us?"

Henderson, amused by the idea, chimed in. "Yes, of course! I'm certain our host wouldn't mind."

"Those men," pursued Hannibal, "are in politics—always interested in talking to the people. You might," he added meaningfully, "be able to get a few things off your chest."

Stretch, his hurt indignation slowly turning into a cold fury, decided to accept the challenge. He came and sat down in the place they made for him opposite Hannibal, while Mary, torn between shame at herself, sympathy for him, and loyalty to her father, stared straight before her.

Henderson, confronting this shy, uncouth-looking youth across the table, began questioning him in a heavily patronizing manner. Where did he come from? What was he doing here? Was he married? And Stretch, talking to him but at Mary, told his story. He was from Montana, and he was married—to a "lady's maid" who had turned out to be a fake and deemed herself too good to permit him to meet her friends.

"That's a strange sort of class distinction," observed Henderson sarcastically.

"Yes," chimed in a woman guest, intent on sharing the fun. "A cowboy ought to be as good as a lady's maid. I must look that up and see what the book says."

"Keeping cows under control is more productive work than hooking up a dress," contributed another woman.

"Yes," jeered a third. "And what about the Indians? Who's going to fight the Indians? The cowboys are the ones who always come to the rescue."

"Ha! Ha! They have a slogan, haven't they—'We always get our man!'"

Henderson turned to Stretch, even more condescending than before. "Now, young man, I want you to give me your opinion. Judge Smith here is seeking the nomination for President of the United States, and he wants my support. What would you advise me to do?"

Stretch decided to tell him. "I'd advise you," he said quietly, "to get down off your high horse and stop talkin' down to people. And the same goes for your smart-aleck friends here. In the first place I don't see where you get off to be pickin' anybody for President, when you haven't got the decency to treat a person like a human being. Instead of inviting people to sit down at your table so you can laugh at them, maybe you better go and find out what they think and feel and need—and how you can help them. In the long run that's all that's gonna count."

"And if Judge Smith there wants to be President, he ain't gonna get very far lookin' down on people or thinkin' he's any better than they are. Lincoln didn't have to do that, and he turned out to be a pretty good President."

And while Uncle Hannibal vociferously applauded, Stretch arose and walked out of the room, heedless of the pleas of Mary, who got up and followed him begging for a word.

HULL LEAVES TODAY FOR LIMA MISSION

Americas as 'Island of Peace' Is Aim of Secretary of State.

(Copyright, 1938, by United Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull and a large diplomatic party will depart from here Friday at 11 a. m. on a historic mission designed to preserve the American continent as "an island of peace" amid a politically storm-tossed world.

Arriving at New York, the party will proceed immediately to pier 87, North river, to embark on the Steamer Santa Clara. The party will disembark at Callao December 7, in ample time for the opening of the eighth conference of American states at Lima, December 9.

Projected for the major purpose of strengthening political, economic, technical and cultural ties among the American republics, the Lima conference will derive added significance from events in Europe and the Far East which tend to re-focus United States foreign policy with increasing intensity upon affairs of the American continent.

In the last few weeks, President Roosevelt's project for "continental security," tension in Europe on racial issues, and the apparent establishment of Japanese hegemony in eastern Asia have given external aspects of Pan-Americanism an even greater urgency than the intra-American topics which heretofore have engaged the chief attention at these assemblies of the 21 American republics.

THREE BURN TO DEATH

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 24.—(P.)—Three negro children were burned to death today when flames enveloped their home while they were alone in the house. Firemen summoned to the home this afternoon found the charred bodies in the smoking ruins. The house was completely destroyed by the flames.

California's Brush Fires Destroy Homes on Beach

Flames that drove residents into the sea to escape injury destroyed two apartment houses of 11 units each and six bungalows on the beach near Santa Monica. Coast guard cutters and Santa Monica police and ambulance speedboats were sent to the scene to rescue residents.

2,000 FIREFIGHTERS STEM COAST BLAZE

Damage Exceeds $5,000,000; Palatial Movie Homes Lost to Flames.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—(UP)—An army of 2,000 firefighters ringed a 200-mile mountain area tonight, battling to check a series of raging fires which destroyed hundreds of homes and threatened many palatial estates.

Property damage already had mounted above $5,000,000 and damage to valuable watersheds was incalculable. One group of fire-fighters made a stand in the Santa Monica mountains to prevent the flames from sweeping into the famous Bel-Air Estates on the very fringe of Beverly Hills, Brentwood and Westwood.

Upwards of 600 homes, most of them week-end cabins and other small dwellings, were estimated to have been leveled by the fires which ate through 50,000 acres of brushland in the Santa Monica and San Bernardino mountains, and in several mountain sections of Ventura county.

Beach Homes Burned.

Built by the property damage was inflicted by the Santa Monica fire, which roared almost to the sea, leveling a three-mile row of beach homes, before it was turned back.

Among the homes reported to have been destroyed in this outbreak were those of Producer Sam Woods, Director Frank Lloyd, and Otto Carillo, brother of Leo. The flames advanced almost to the doors of the sumptuous residences of J. Walter Rubin and Virginia Bruce, Miriam Hopkins, Richard Dix and Director Frank Borzage before being checked.

As the fire whipped back inland toward untouched stretches of tinder-like brush, it menaced the $500,000 ranch of the late W. B. Rogers. The late comedian's widow, Mrs. Betty Rogers, and three children, Will Jr., Mary and Jim, loaded priceless relics of their father and furniture into vans and prepared to leave when the danger was at its height, but later reports sent the time-in-the-slot phoned and the ranch saved.

$200,000 Estate Threatened.

The fire attacked Rustic canyon, advancing steadily toward the $200,000 estate of Anatol Josepho, who made a fortune in the movie industry. Two hundred Los Angeles firemen, with pumping equipment, sped to the scene and apparently halted the advance when the flames were within 50 yards of the estate.

In Rustic canyon, firemen sought to stem the blaze before it leaped across and raced on to the more populous Sullivan and Mandeville canyons, which lie closer to Bel-Air and Beverly Hills. At mid-afternoon, fire-fighters massed their forces here in a concerted attempt to halt the rampaging flames.

Appeals for additional men came hourly from the fire front. Joseph Scott, chief of the Los Angeles department, who had 700 men on the front, transferred them back to city stations after 24-hour continuous duty. Firemen who had been on station duty were ordered to the fire lines.

NEWTON'S RETRIAL SLATED NEXT WEEK

Change of Venue Possible if Jury Selection Fails in Screven.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 24.—(AP) Prosecution and defense counsel looked today to a panel of 81 Screven county superior court jurors for selection of 12 men to retrial Joe and Ralph Newton, last of seven defendants accused in the slaying of wealthy Charlie Daughtry, Screven county planter.

The two men—father and son—are scheduled to go on trial here next Wednesday. In a previous trial the jury reported itself hopelessly deadlocked.

Superior Judge William Woodrum announced last night he would order a change of venue should it prove impossible to obtain a jury to try the case in Screven county. He added he would offer Solicitor General W. G. Neville and Defense Attorney Frank Brandt opportunity to agree on one of three other counties comprising the Ogeechee judicial circuit—Bulloch, Jenkins or Effingham. Failing an agreement, Judge Woodrum said, he would designate the county himself.

Both Brandt and Neville said they were confident a jury could be obtained to try the case. Judge Woodrum said a civil suit would be heard Monday involving disposition of part of the late planter's estate. In the action, E. W. Miller, administrator of the Daughtry estate, seeks a court ruling whether the share of Marie Daughtry, daughter of the slain man, shall be paid directly to her or to Albert Cobb, her attorney, who contends he holds power of attorney for his client.

Daughtry was slain September 22, 1937, on a lonely road of a turpentine swamp not far from his home at Rocky Ford. The state contends his death was part of a plot to obtain part of his estate. Three men—John Burns, Osborne Newton and a negro, Aaron Nelson—are under life sentences for the crime. Cobb, a Savannah attorney, who was accused as an accessory, was acquitted.

HOME'S CHALLENGE CITED TO BAPTISTS

Two-Day Regional Conference of Leaders Is Opened in Augusta.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Baptist leaders from Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and the Carolinas were told today modern conditions in the home offer a challenge and an opportunity for greater character-building work in Sunday schools.

Andrew Allen, secretary of the education department of the Baptist Sunday School Board at Nashville, opened a two-day regional meeting with a keynote address in which he said the conflict among nations and individuals now is "between right and might."

"Character education has abdicated in the home," he said in appealing for church workers to help youth meet its problems. Contributing to a breakdown "In many American homes," he said, were easy divorce, "crowded conditions in cities and apartment houses," and a desire for luxuries which "has caused a decrease in children and an increase in selfishness."

A Thanksgiving sermon by Dr. Arthur Jackson, of Savannah, concluded the first day's program, which also included a study by Dr. E. M. Highsmith, of Mercer University, at Macon, on the psychic factors in developing a religious sense in young persons.

A talk by J. W. Vincent, head of the Atlanta office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, will be a highlight of tomorrow's program. Dr. R. Paul Caudill, of the First Baptist church, is host pastor to the meeting.
